TESLA'S $1.5BN PUSH SENDS BITCOIN VALUE BEYOND ₹32L

Bitcoin rises 16% to $44,795 after Tesla Inc pumps in money, signals its intent to accept cryptocurrency as a form of payment

LENDS LEGITIMACY TO CRYPTOCURRENCY

The California-based manufacturer said on Monday that it made the bet after updating its investment policy to allow it to invest in digital assets as well as bullion and gold exchange-traded funds. The massive investment lends increased legitimacy to electronic currencies, fast becoming a mainstream asset, despite skepticism in various quarters

How 12 got the kiss of life from mobile network

VINEET UPADHYAY @ Raini

TRAPPED in a tunnel filled with water for nearly six hours, he thought it was going to be the end of his life. K Sriniwas Reddy, a geologist from Hyderabad, couldn't think of anything else after hearing a deafening noise followed by a sudden gush of water. But when all seemed over, the mobile network on a colleague's phone saved their lives. Reddy is one of the lucky 12 rescued on Sunday.

"I thought we are not going to survive this," said Reddy, who found himself locked in a tunnel which is part of the Tapovan hydel power project. "We tried frantically to reach the mouth of the tunnel and then realised that it was blocked. But there was light coming through a small opening and a colleague of ours had signal on his phone. I feel blessed as I am safe now."

It was local worker Rajesh Bhatt, whose call made the difference between life and death. "We were panicking and suddenly, I felt my phone vibrate. I called up my boss to say we were inside the tunnel. He informed authorities and the men in uniform saved our lives. We thank them. They are our gods," said Bhatt, a resident of Dhak village in Chamoli.

"We were cautious about using heavy machinery which could have hurt them," said Sanjay Kumar, ITBP officer.

We were towards the higher end of the tunnel. After a thundering noise, there was a sudden gush of water. Before we could understand, we were knee-deep in water. We ran towards the end of the tunnel

20 BODIES FOUND, 202 STILL MISSING

VINEET UPADHYAY @ Raini

A massive operation was launched on Monday to save 37 labourers trapped in a tunnel following a flash flood that devastated the Tapovan area in Uttarakhand's Chamoli district a day earlier. So far, 20 bodies have been found and 202 are still missing. Armed forces and disaster response units are involved in rescue work. A team of scientists from Delhi reached the spot to find out the cause of the disaster.

Joint teams of Indo-Tibetan Border Police, Indian Army, National Disaster Response Force, State Disaster Response Force and others had a tough time making their way through a sea of mud and debris. They also recovered dismembered body parts. The missing include 188 labourers (mostly from eastern UP, Bihar and Jharkhand), 11 locals and two police personnel.

"We are doing everything to save them. We rescued 15 men trapped in the other end of this tunnel yesterday," said Aparna Kumar, DIG of ITBP. The force of water was enormous and bodies were swept around 160 km downhill, to places like Srinagar (Uttarakhand), Rudraprayag, Kaleshwar and Karnprayag.

The rescuers have progressed about 100 metres into the 180-metre tunnel of the 520 MW power project on Dhauliganga that was swept away by the flood. The other unit damaged is the 13.2 MW project on Rishiganga. Both sites are still under heavy slush. Many workers and officials associated with them were on leave on Sunday, which minimised the loss of lives.

The state government has released ₹20 crore for Chamoli district. Total monetary losses are estimated to be in the region of ₹1,500 crore. The impact was such that the water level of Dhauliganga rose 80-100 ft above normal, engulfing the entire project and other structures, including the tunnel. "The debris is 20-30 feet high inside the tunnel which makes it difficult," said Sanjay Kumar, deputy commandant of ITBP. P9

Give reforms a chance, says PM, urges farmers to resume talks

Lauds Sikhs; assures MSP will continue; cites Manmohan's push for reforms

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

PRIME Minister Narendra Modi on Monday urged the farmers to give agri reforms a chance even as he reiterated that the minimum support price (MSP) mechanism would continue. Urging the farmers to call off their protest, the prime minister said the government was open to changes in the law. "Let us sit together and talk," he said.

In his reply to the Motion of Thanks to the President's address in Rajya Sabha, the PM said MSP was, is being, and would continue to be provided. He wanted the farmers to be open minded about the reforms that aim to modernise the mandi system all the while ensuring continued availability of affordable ration to the poor. "The laws are aimed at empowering the small and marginal farmers, who make up for more than two-thirds of the farming community but cannot avail of government scheme benefits," he added.

Claiming that some protestors and foreign players were misleading the agitators, he lashed out at the opposition for its U-turn from advocating reforms during its rule to bashing it now. Reading excerpts from a statement issued by former prime minister Manmohan Singh on the need for farm reforms and one national market, Modi said, "I am implementing what he (Manmohan Singh) wanted, you should appreciate this. At least, you (opposition) listen to him," he said.

Later, Modi said a new crop of andolan jivi (professional protesters) has emerged in the country. "These are like parjeevi (parasites) and are always on the lookout for protests. When they are not in the forefront, they operate from backstage," he said.

Perhaps alluding to tweets by pop star Rihanna and Swedish activist Greta Thunberg supporting the agitation, Modi said, "I see that a new FDI has come. We have to protect the nation from this FDI. We need Foreign Direct Investment but the new FDI is Foreign Destructive Ideology," he said.

Kisans reciprocate gesture, ready for fresh dialogue

HARPREET BAJWA @ Chandigarh

RESPONDING to Prime Minister Narendra Modi's call to end their agitation and return to the dialogue table, farmers' leaders said they have never shied away from talks and would resume discussions once the Centre sends a fresh proposal and fixes the date and time. President of Krantikari Kisan Union Punjab Dr Darshan Pal said they have had 11 rounds of talks with three Union ministers, and were ready to continue engaging with the Centre. Dr Pal is a senior member of the umbrella organisation of multiple farmers' unions.

Bharatiya Kisan Union (BKU) leader Rakesh Tikait sought to reiterate the farmers' position, saying they wanted a legal guarantee on MSP, cushioning the farmers from the vagaries of demand-supply defined rates for their produce. P10

Vijayanagar, 31st district takes birth

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru/Ballari/Hosapete

THE State Government on Monday issued a gazette notification carving out the new Vijayanagar district from Ballari district. The new district with Hosapete as its district headquarters will have six taluks -- Hosapete, Kudligi, Hagaribommanahalli, Kotturu, Hoovina Hadagali and Harapanahalli. But the world heritage site Hampi will not be part of the new district.

Ballari district with Ballari as its headquarters will have five taluks -- Ballari, Kurugodu, Siruguppa, Kampli and Sanduru.

The state cabinet had given an in-principle approval for the creation of the new district on November 18, 2020 and a draft notification was published on December 14, inviting objections and suggestions. "The suggestions received on this behalf have been considered by the government," the notification issued on Monday stated.

Tikait to hold meet in N K'taka this month

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Mysuru

AFTER a protest-filled start for the year, Karnataka farmers are all set for more action this month as farmer leader Rakesh Tikait, the newfound torchbearer of farmer protests across the country, will hold a mahapanchayat-like gathering in North Karnataka in the second half of February.

Tikait will be in the state to galvanise support for farmer protests, said president of Karnataka Rajya Raitha Sangha and Hasiru Sene, Badagalpura Nagendra, on Monday. State farmers will also go on a Vidhana Soudha Chalo rally during the budget session, asking the government to repeal the farm laws and cow slaughter bill, which was passed in the Council on Monday.

Over 50,000 farmers from each district will take part in the rally, demanding MSP for coffee, silk and other cash crops similar to what is in vogue in states like Kerala. MSP for these crops will not only help farmers, but also the government, he added. Besides protests, a South Indian farmers' round table conference os planned in Bengaluru.

PANDEMIC TO ENDEMIC, COVID IS PETERING OUT, SAY EXPERTS

CHETANA BELAGERE @ Bengaluru

THE Covid pandemic is now nearing an endemic phase, say epidemiologists and virologists. "India is likely to see the transition from the epidemic to endemic phase in a month or two," explained renowned virologist Dr Jacob John, a retired professor and head of departments of clinical virology and microbiology, Christian Medical College (Vellore).

"An endemic disease means it never really goes away and often returns in a specific season or region periodically. Theoretically, an infection becomes endemic if on an average each infected individual transmits it to one other person -- when the Reproduction number or R is 1. During an epidemic, R is more than one and when the spread is decreasing through control measures or herd immunity, R is less than 1," he said.

But Dr N Manjunath, Director, Jayadeva Institute of Cardiology, said, "There are a number of patterns that can be observed in endemic diseases. Some can exist at low levels throughout the year, while others might show periods of higher transmission interspersed with periods of low transmissions." P3

KSPCB HIKES CONSENT FEE FOR PROJECTS

Revision comes after 23 years

S LALITHA @Bengaluru

THE Karnataka State Pollution Control Board (KSPCB) has hiked the annual consent fee (registration fee) paid by all infrastructure projects. It is likely to come into immediate effect.

The revision was notified in the gazette on November 11, 2020, but was officially intimated to the Pollution Control Board only on January 4, 2021, said a top official. "We are now taking legal opinion as well as holding talks with the government whether to bring it in with retrospective effect from the day of notification, or after KSPCB issues a circular."

The rules are now called the Karnataka State Board for the Prevention and Control of Water Pollution (Procedure for Transaction of Business) and Water (Prevention and Control of Pollution) (Amendment) Rules, 2020.

Unlike in the past when the cost of the project determined the hike, the quantity of sewage generated by each building is the determining factor in fixing the cost. The hike has been effected for houses, apartments, commercial complexes, office buildings, layouts, educational institutions, townships and local bodies, as per the gazette notification. KSPCB member secretary Srinivasulu told TNIE, "This is the first time since 1998 that we have effected an increase in the fee. This was long due."

Chairman Vijaykumar Gogi said, "KSPCB had enough reserves to sustain us, so we did not hike it periodically, like that done by other organisations. However, we have now reached a stage where we need to generate revenue to maintain our independence and autonomy. Hence, we decided on the hike to sustain the Board."

The fee has been hiked, but comparison with the past cannot be made in percentage terms as the yardstick was completely different, said senior environmental officer Syed Khaja.

Projects have been classified into Green, Orange and Red, depending on the amount of sewage generated by each unit, with Red being STPs with maximum and Green with minimum capacity, and Orange falling in the medium category.

Industrial units which were approached for their comment on the issue, said had not heard of the hike.

Keep cut at 15% of total fee: Pvt schools to govt

PEARL MARIA D'SOUZA @Bengaluru

SCHOOLS across boards -- Central Board of Secondary Education (CBSE), Indian Certificate of Secondary Education (ICSE) and state – have asked the State Government to reconsider its decision to cut the tuition fee by 30% and to restrict it to not more than 15% of the total fees.

The Independent Schools' Federation of India (an association of managements and principals of CBSE and ICSE private schools across the country), Associated Managements of Primary and Secondary Schools in Karnataka (KAMS) and Karnataka ICSE Schools Association have sought a meeting with Chief Minister BS Yediyurappa to submit their demand. They have already met Medical Education Minister Dr K Sudhakar.

Primary and Secondary Education Minister S Suresh Kumar recently announced that schools have to charge only 70 per cent of their tuition fees and should not collect any other fee from students.

The associations argued that the order has sounded a deathknell to unaided private schools. They asked the government not to distinguish between tuition fees and total fees, as nearly 75 per cent of the total fees is used to pay the salaries of teachers.

P T Joseph, senior vice-president of the federation, told TNIE that 70 per cent of the tuition fees allowed to be collected this year translates to just 30-40 per cent of the total fees.

"Coupled with this is the burden of RTE (Right To Education) fee loss," said school administrators, seeking a reimbursement of RTE fees for this and last year.

They sought a State Government grant to ensure that full salaries are paid to the teachers. They also reminded the government that they have not received any benefits from the teachers and students welfare fund to which they contribute every year.

They asked the government to waive off the interest on loans taken for school development during the Covid period, reschedule the loans and to waive off property tax, electricity bills, student-teachers welfare charges and telephone bills for the academic year 2021-22.

However, MH Gangamaregowda, head of the fee regulation committee, told TNIE that no complaints from parents or administrators have reached them for resolution.

Alternative dispute resolution: Private college to help students learn the trick

CHETANA BELAGERE @Bengaluru

TO promote Alternative Dispute Resolution practices, a private law school in Bengaluru has opened an ADR centre for its students.

Set up at CMR University School of Legal Studies, the centre will train law students in different ways of resolving disputes such through lok adalats, arbitration, mediation, conciliation, and counselling services.

High Court judge Justice Shankar Ganapathi Pandit said during the launch on Monday, "It is a novel initiative to entrust the ADR Centre student committee with the responsibility for the ADR activities."

Quoted Abraham Lincoln, he said, "Discourage litigation. Persuade your neighbours to compromise whenever you can. Point out to them how a nominal winner is often a loser - in fees, expenses and waste of time."

As a peace maker, the lawyer has a superior opportunity of being a good man. He said that ADR has undergone a phenomenal change, evolving from elders of the village solving differences to the stage of gaining statutory recognition.

Acknowledging that ADRs can help, Pramila Nesargi, senior advocate and former women's commission chairperson told TNIE, "Students should be taught pre-mediation techniques, and the government should constitute pre-mediation centres which will prevent people from approaching courts unnecessarily when things can be resolved through dialogue."

Susheela Sarathi, designated senior counsel, HC, said the university stands out through this initiative. She also advised students to undergo training to enhance their communication, negotiation and other techniques.

TOTS TO GO BACK TO ANGANWADIS SOON

PEARL MARIA D'SOUZA @Bengaluru

THE Karnataka government is slowly readying to reopen Anganwadis. With this, the learning centres that double as nutritional support ones, will open to students aged 3-6 years after nearly a year of closing, since the lockdown.

This decision by the Health and Family Welfare Department comes weeks after the Supreme Court ordered the states and Union territories to open Anganwadi centres. The court had left it to the discretion of the State Disaster Management Authority to open these centres outside containment zones.

Meanwhile, centres within containment zones will remain shut during the isolation period prescribed.

A state-level committee too insisted on January 30 on opening of Anganwadis, said an official from the department. The committee headed by former judge Justice A N Venugopala Gowda was constituted by the Karnataka High Court in January to monitor malnutrition in children and lactating mothers.

The reopening of these centres was then discussed at the secretary and ministerial levels before the minister was said to have given his consent in the first week of February.

The department has readied orders for sanitizing the centres and is preparing to reopen the Anganwadis, which address the health and nutritional needs of young children and lactating mothers under the Integrated Child Development Services Scheme.

"Classes will be held in rotation, as a maximum of five students will be allowed to attend at a time. Food kits will be continued for students," said a top official from the department.

In the previous year, 16.21 lakh children between ages 3 and 6 had enrolled for Anganwadis across the state, said the official. The numbers have not fluctuated much this year.

The official said that children of migrant workers too seem to have enrolled in the regions they migrated back to.

Meanwhile, classes 9-12 have resumed completely, and the Vidyagama programme continues to be implemented in schools for classes 6-8. However, the department is yet to announce the reopening of primary and higher primary classes from grades 1-8.

Daily Starscope

PETER VIDAL

09th February: Jupiter's positive movements, which I mentioned yesterday, are significant for all of us. It seems to me that the entire world should shift over the next few weeks to an intense, 'can-do' philosophy in which anything is possible. Watch for global changes very soon.

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
Don't let a minor matter get you down today. Commonsense lunar alignments advise you that it's now perfectly possible to get around any little irritation by simply taking the appropriate practical steps. The answer may well be staring you right in the face!

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
Work will probably bring you a great deal of satisfaction. The whole point about the current period is the deep desire for greater fulfilment and a more intense sense of personal meaning. You'll have to listen carefully to partners - probably because they're right!

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
There is still so much emphasis on business involvements that you may be all hyped-up. At the very heart of the matter lies an urge for material security that may actually smother lesser motivations. In other words, you might get financial needs tangled-up with emotional desires.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
Refuse to be drawn over family matters, because whatever you say or do now, circumstances will soon change. In fact, within a month you may have completely altered some of your deeply-held ideas. And, as your opinions change, so will your behaviour - and so will your future.

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
You should be able to make other people smile, bringing a dose of your legendary good humour into the day's proceedings. We will all be better off if you take an optimistic course and turn away from petty problems. After all, you really do have so much to give to the world.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
This is one of those days when you could be waiting for something to happen. Don't expect plans to work out as expected. If they do, all well and good; if they don't, do appreciate the chance for a change. And try and make some time for social relaxation.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
Although the heavens are being remarkably good to you, I have no doubt that you feel rather undermined. Your biggest problem is probably not what other people say, but your own tendency to be too self-critical. Go easy on yourself and you'll be better placed to make the most of welcome invitations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
Expect the unexpected today, and welcome it when it comes. The next Sun-Moon angle will urge you to embrace all that is new and untried. If serious matters are to be dealt with, then you should bring friends into the picture - there's someone close who already knows what you need to know!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
Can you afford to make an error of judgment now? I don't think you can. The margin of safety is so slight that you must play it safe. In love, you may be too concerned with partners' potential status and prestige. But what seems so desirable today may seem very different tomorrow.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
This is no time to be devious. Not only are you likely to gain most from being open and straightforward, you are also due to benefit from someone else's honesty. It's truth time for Capricorn! You're being presented with an amazing opportunity to look right into your deepest feelings and motives.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
You, more than most people, deserve a chance to take your mind off recent struggles. One word of advice is to be aware of the legal or ethical issues that may have a bearing on your future plans. Everything is up for grabs, but a cautious approach could get you everything you need.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
Current lunar alignments are responsible for making this a busy period of year, yet you may find that your current efforts come to nought. This may be because it is not yet the right moment to move towards completion. There is, after all, a time to move on and a time to stay still.

Only 22% frontline workers turn up for jab

On Monday, no district achieved 50% coverage of Covid warriors; hesitance, CoWIN app glitch to blame

Pourakarmikas wait for thier turn to get the jab at KC General Hospital in Bengaluru on Monday | SHRIRAM BN

VACCINATION for frontline workers has seen poor turnout across Karnataka, much like the lukewarm response from health staff.

Only 22% (18,763) of 87,105 frontline workers across scheduled to get the jab on Monday turned up. Frontline staff, who include police and some categories of government officials, are reluctant to take the jab due to vaccine hesitancy and also because there is a sentiment that it might not be necessary as the number of new Covid infections has been low for some weeks, officials say.

Vaccination of health workers is ongoing simultaneously, with 3,93,439 (49%) of the registered 8,02,101 health staff getting their first shot of either Covaxin or Covishield between January 16 to February 8.

None of the state's 30 districts crossed 50% coverage. On the higher side were districts such as Tumakuru (41%), Gadag (44%), and Chikmagaluru (43%). However, Bengaluru Urban saw 13%, Belagavi 19%, Ballari 21%, and districts such as Chamarajanagara, Dakshina Kannada, Davanagere and Mysuru had single-digit coverage at 5%, 6%, 8%, and 8% respectively. Kodagu district was yet to start vaccinating frontline workers.

The poor show among health workers was attributed to both vaccine hesitance and to glitches in the CoWIN app, but the latter issue had been sorted out on Monday when vaccination for frontline staff began.

None of the police personnel who were to get vaccinated in Mysuru turned up for their dose. Just 29% of 2,906 people in Hassan district were given the jab at HIMS hospital. In Dharwad, 801 of 3,000 people were given their shot. Hubballi-Dharwad police commissioner Labhu Ram and several senior officers including the jail superintendent received the jab.

Dr Sudhir Chandra Sooda, DHO, Udupi, pointed out that on day one, the district saw 132 (22%) of 593 beneficiaries getting the shot at four centres. In Kalaburagi district, of the 3,772 personnel of the police department who enrolled, 288 (7.64 %) got their first dose. Of the 3,141 revenue department employees, 128 (4.08%) were vaccinated and 26 (1.68%) of 1,544 municipal employees got the jab.

B'luru numbers low too

Frontline workers including BBMP officials, revenue and police officers, and pourakarmikas did not turn up in expected numbers due to fear of the vaccine and complacency regarding Covid-19.

By 5.30 pm an abysmal, 13% of 13,311 frontline workers took the jab in Bengaluru Urban on Monday, apart from 25% of 9,961 health workers. A doctor from Singasandra primary health centre said only two people turned up by afternoon even though messages from CoWIN were sent to several people in advance.

"The response to the vaccine is the same as before with not enough people coming forward to take the jab. There is not enough awareness even though we tried motivating workers by taking the vaccine ourselves," said Dr Suresh Rudrappa, Medical Officer Health, in Malleswaram, who is responsible for five PHCs.

Eat hybrid veggies to battle anaemia

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

TO address anaemia and malnutrition, researchers are working with farmers and coming up with hybrid varieties of fruits and vegetables, said Dr Trilochan Mohapatra, DG, Indian Council of Agricultural Research (ICAR), on Monday during the inaugural session of the National Horticulture Fair 2021.

Citing the example of pomegranate production, he said, it was found that there was 3mg iron per 100gm, which had now been increased to 6mg. He said the protein amount in hybrid crops is also being increased, where it is assumed that there are only carbohydrates.

Mohapatra added that the Centre had set up 50 incubation centres to train horticulture farmers to become entrepreneurs.

The theme of this year's fair is 'Start up And Stand Up India'. Around 300 varieties of fruits, vegetables and crops are being showcased by IIHR-ICAR, which is organising the fair, in Hesaraghatta. It will be on till February 12.

Due to the pandemic, the fair is being held virtually and physically, and 721 Krishi Vignana Kendras, 800 farming communities and 11 universities are participating.

Sri Sri Ravi Shankar, founder of Art of Living, asked farmers and researchers to rope in the AYUSH department as many herbs and natural products will not just get commercial value, but will help citizens in building immunity and also help farmers.

He said farmers must take up multi-cropping, which used to be done many years back. He appealed to heads of various religious institutions, farming communities, NGOs, activists and citizens to work closely with farmers to educate them on the financial benefits of multi-modal cropping and the importance of working with researchers to get better yields.

He said there is a need to go from labour to land. He said farmers in India are not alone and the country is with them. He reminded everyone that India is a Rishi- Krishi country.

'Covid must be eradicated with vaccines, like polio'

"THIS means Covid is here to stay. It can come back once a year until it is eradicated with vaccines like polio," said Dr Manjunath, Director, Jayadeva Institute of Cardiology.

The effectiveness of vaccination drive will be known only after the second week of March when the second dosage is completed, experts said.

The positivity rate in Karnataka has averaged 0.8% in the last few weeks. "The disease is in an endemic stage in the state as the number of cases went up, came down come and remained constant," said Dr John.

Dr Giridhar Babu, advisor to Covid Task Force, however, said, "Over the last few months, cases have remained stagnant. The positivity rate too has gone down. The second round of sero-survey is being done in all districts. We have to analyse the data to know how the virus is behaving. The argument about reaching the endemic stage is still hypothetical."

The government's focus now should not be on curtailing the pandemic, but preventing deaths, Dr John said. "The government must focus on those who are at risk of death and prioritise them for vaccination, and people with comorbidities."

Financial constraints this year; health and agriculture likely to get a good share

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

CHIEF MINISTER BS Yediyurappa on Monday started his pre-budget meetings with ministers and senior officers. Over the next two weeks, he will hold a series of meetings to discuss subjects related to their departments, that need to be included in the upcoming State budget, being presented amid financial constraints.

On Monday, Yediyurappa met ministers and officers from the departments of higher education, IT/BT, skill development, revenue, industries, labour and public sector undertaking. Sources said the government is focusing on attracting investment and private partnerships to take up development works.

With revenue collection not up to expectations this year, it will be a challenge to present a budget which is likely to focus on health, agriculture and infrastructure. As the Union budget lay stress on skill development and agriculture, the Chief Minister is likely to take the cue and present a budget which will supplement the central budget.

Yediyurappa told reporters he will be meeting officials and ministers every day. "We will discuss financial status too," he said. Asked when the budget will be presented, he said the date is under discussion.

The Karnataka State Planning Board had recently recommended to the State Government to adopt the PPP model to improve education, health, tourism and other sectors. The government has developed software to implement and coordinate works taken up under the PPP model by companies under their CSR initiative. Sources in the CMO said Yediyurappa is expected to announce schemes and projects with private partnership, to reduce the State's financial burden.

Higher Education Minister and DyCM Dr CN Ashwath Narayan appealed to the Chief Minister to increase grants to his department. "Every year, 1.9-2 per cent of the budget is reserved for higher education. This year, the minister has appealed for 3.5 per cent," sources told TNIE.

The minister has reportedly sought recruitment of 9,000 lecturers for agriculture, medical and engineering colleges, to improve the quality of education and effectively implement the National Education Policy.

"In 2020-2021, the State government allocated Rs 4,687 crore for higher education, of which Rs 3,998 crore was spent on salaries. The remaining amount is too meagre to improve infrastructure. Many universities, including Bengaluru North, Hampi, Karnataka State Sanskrit University, Folk University, need to be improved," sources said.

Industries Minister Jagadish Shettar said they have already announced the new industrial policy, which will be part of the budget. He also said they are hoping to announce a policy for Electric Vehicle Mission.

Modi hails Gowda, provides fodder to rumour mills

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE

EVEN as he lambasted the Opposition on its stand on the farmers' protest during his speech in the Rajya Sabha on Monday, Prime Minister Narendra Modi had only words of praise for former Prime Minister and JDS supremo H D Deve Gowda. He hailed Gowda as someone who has devoted his life to the welfare of farmers.

This comes at a time when the BJP and JDS in Karnataka are cosying up to each other. It also comes barely days after the JDS backed the BJP to elect M K Pranesh of the saffron party as Karnataka Legislative Council deputy chairman. In exchange, the BJP is expected to help JDS get its leader Basavaraj Horatti elected Council chairman on Tuesday.

"I am indebted to Deve Gowdaji. He extended dignity to this whole debate and even praised the government for its good work. I express my heartfelt gratitude to him," said Modi. This came as a reaction to Gowda's Motion of Thanks speech in the Rajya Sabha last week, where he said that since 2014, some programmes implemented by the Modi government have shown results. Gowda had asked for the farmers' issues to be sorted out immediately and demanded that the government hold talks.

In December last year, PM Modi had set off a buzz around the BJP's proximity with JDS when he took to his social media pages to greet former Chief Minister HD Kumaraswamy on his birthday — a courtesy that wasn't extended even when Kumaraswamy was chief minister. On that day, the Prime Minister had also heaped praise on the JDS supremo.

Council passes cow bill amid protests

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

AMIDST protests from Congress and JDS members, the Legislative Council on Monday passed the Karnataka Prevention of Slaughter and Preservation of Cattle Bill.

It was passed a day before the Council Chairman's election where senior JDS MLC Basavaraj Horatti is contesting as BJP-JDS alliance candidate.

A ruckus erupted with the opposition members rushing to the well of the House. But the Bill was passed by a voice vote. According to BJP MLC Ravikumar, there were 27 BJP members, while Congress and JDS together had around 22 to 23. "As the opposition members came to the well, their votes were deemed invalid and BJP had majority votes. Also, there were more BJP members in the House when the Bill was passed,'' he added.

Earlier, during the discussion, Congress members demanded that the State government withdraw the Bill or send it to the Joint Select Committee.

Congress member C M Ibrahim said, "We are not like Maharashtra or UP. Do not bring communal colour to this Bill. Give us time, I will invite the heads of all mosques. Let us discuss. Refer this Bill to the Joint Select Committee,'' he said, adding that the government should think from the farmers' angle.

B K Hariprasad of Congress said that this Bill would not help anyone, neither the farmers nor the common people.

The Bill was passed in the Assembly on December 9, 2020.

Animal Husbandry Minister Prabhu chavan said with the passage of the Bill in the Upper House, the much-awaited law will be implemented in Karnataka and this will help to protect 'desi cows' .

NOW, PAY MORE PROPERTY TAX, NEW LAW MANDATES IT

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

THE Karnataka Municipalities (Second Amendment) Bill 2021, and Karnataka Municipalities And Certain Other Law (Amendment) Bill 2021, were passed in the Council amid opposition from Congress on revising the property tax structure to improve revenues of municipalities. It also extends time limit for payment of property tax, and provides rebate of 5 per cent to those paying it within one month of commencement of the Act.

While the government insisted that the amendment be brought in to offer rebate to those who have paid property tax, the Congress demanded that the government offer 50 per cent rebate in property tax as people are finding it difficult to pay taxes due to Covid. The Bills were earlier passed in the Assembly.

The Congress members said the government is allowing local bodies to revise property tax every year, as against once in three to five years. Congress MLCs said local bodies should be allowed to decide on property tax after consulting people, and by taking such a decision the government is curtailing the powers of local bodies.

Municipal Administration Minister MTB Nagaraj and Urban Development Minister Byrati Basavaraj insisted that except the rebate there is nothing new in the remaining provisions mentioned in the bills. They dismissed Opposition charge that annual revision of taxes will be a burden on people. The State Government has to ensure that municipalities have funds for development works, and also ensure the government is eligible for an additional borrowing limit of 0.25 per cent of Gross State Domestic Product for 2020-21, they said.

JANATA Dal (Secular) MLC Basavaraj Horatti on Monday filed his nomination for the State Legislative Council chairman's election, and is set to be elected on Tuesday.

The ruling BJP, which is the single largest party in the Council with 31 MLCs, is supporting Horatti.

The opposition Congress, with 28 members in the Council, fielded Naseer Ahmed as its candidate, with an objective of ensuring a contest. Monday was the last date for filing nominations for Tuesday's election.

Elections to the chairman's post was necessitated after the resignation of Congress MLC Prathap Chandra Shetty. The BJP, with JDS support, had issued a notice to move a no-confidence motion against Shetty, following which he resigned on February 4. The Council had witnessed unruly scenes after Shetty had rejected the notice on a no-confidence motion issued by the BJP. The ruling party had issued the notice for the second time, and had the support of the JDS.

> We have decided to field a candidate to ensure the election is not unanimous, and the JDS-BJP alliance is exposed

After it emerged as the single largest party in the Council after the recent elections, the BJP has joined hands with JDS to oust the chairman, and as per arrangement between the two parties, BJP MLC ML Pranesh was elected Deputy Chairman of the Council on January 29. The party is now backing a JDS member for the chairman's post.

Sources in the Congress said they have decided to field a candidate to ensure the election is not unanimous, and the JDS-BJP alliance is "exposed".

Kharge lashes out at PM, gets threat call in minutes

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

SENIOR Congress leader and Rajya Sabha member M Mallikarjuna Kharge on Monday received a threat call, minutes after he spoke to the media in the national capital, criticising Prime Minister Narendra Modi's speech in the Upper House of Parliament.

Congress Rajya Sabha member from Karnataka Syed Naseer Hussain said a Congress delegation led by Kharge spoke to the media, and reacted to the PM's speech. Soon after, a call came through on Kharge's mobile. "It looked like the number was from Madhya Pradesh. The anonymous caller spoke in Hindi and accused him of always speaking against Modi and against the country," the MP said, adding that the caller also threatened the senior Congress leader. The call was received by Kharge's personal assistant.

Hussain was part of the Congress delegation with Kharge when he spoke to the media. Stating that the Congress is filing a police complaint, he said it was not the first time the veteran Congress leader was getting a threat call. In 2018, he had received a threat call, and an FIR (First Information Report) was also filed, but there was no investigation into it.

Kharge had also received a threat call when he was filing nominations to contest the Rajya Sabha polls from Karnataka, he said. "Imagine if a senior leader who has been in politics for 50 years is threatened for expressing their views, what is the situation in the country," the Congress MP said.

Ministers: New dist to help in better administration

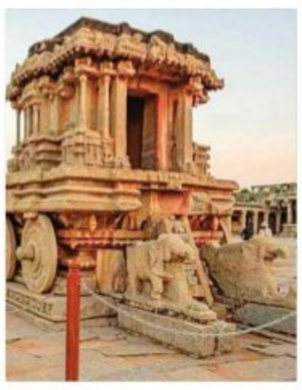
DESCRIBING it as the biggest dream of his life coming true, Infrastructure Development Minister Anand Singh said that the new district is the culmination of efforts of many leaders and each individual.

"It was a long-pending demand for better administration of the region, as Ballari was a big district. I thank Chief Minister BS Yediyurappa and my cabinet colleagues for supporting the cause," he added.

While several organisations in Hosapete and other taluks of the new district celebrated, some in Ballari protested and shouted slogans against the government.



Social Welfare Minister B Sriramulu reasoned that Ballari district has been bifurcated for better administration. He appealed to protesters in Ballari to end their agitation and to work towards the development of both districts.

Minister hints at BJP-JDS alliance in Mysuru City Corporation

Mysuru: Stating that reservation for the post of mayor and deputy mayor of Mysuru would be announced in a couple of days, District Minister S T Somashekhar hinted at the BJP joining hands with JDS in the Mysuru City Corporation. Amid hectic political lobbying for the posts and speculation of a split in the Congress-JDS alliance, the BJP is keeping its options open, and may join hands with the JDS, with an eye on the mayoral post. Though the mayoral term -- Mayor Tasneem from the JDS and Deputy Mayor Sridhar from Congress -- ended nearly a month ago, the government is yet to announce reservation. As per agreement, this time the post of mayor should go to the Congress, but with several Congress leaders, including Opposition leader Siddaramaiah, speaking about parting ways with JDS, the BJP is trying to cash in on the situation. After fight in state, Kurubas to approach Centre for ST tag

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Shivamogga

RURAL DEVELOPMENT and Panchayat Raj Minister and Kuruba leader K S Eshwarappa said on Monday that they plan to approach the Central government seeking ST tag for the community. "The community leaders will submit memorandums to the state government, and to Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Union Home Minister Amit Shah, in this regard," he said.

He told the media persons that Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa had sanctioned grants for the Kuruba community and also declared a holiday on Kanaka Jayanthi. The Kuruba Meesalati Horata Samiti will meet the CM before approaching the Centre as the issue has to be decided in the cabinet, he added.

Eshwarappa, who is in the forefront of the agitation, said the Kuruba community is included in the Scheduled Tribe list in four districts – Kalaburagi, Bidar, Yadgir and Kodagu. Now, the committee demands that it be extended across the state.

Terming the Kuruba convention in Bengaluru on Sunday as historic and a great success, Eshwarappa said the gathering wished to see all their community leaders, including former CM Siddaramaiah, with seers Eshwarananda and Niranjanananda on one platform. "I telephoned and invited him (Siddaramaiah), but he did not come. Had he joined us in our fight, it would have made the community happier," he said.

> The community leaders will submit memorandums to the state government, and to Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Union Home Minister Amit Shah, in this regard
> S Eshwarappa, RDPR minister

Referring to Siddaramaiah's allegation that the RSS had sanctioned funds for the convention, Eshwarappa said, "It was the people from the community who donated funds to organise the mega convention, not RSS leaders."

"The community made Siddaramaiah CM and he should extend his support to the struggle. Except Siddaramaiah, all leaders of different parties participated in the convention for a common cause, keeping aside their political differences," he said.

"Due to the blessings and leadership of seers Eshwarananda and Niranjanananda, we managed to hold the padayatra and the convention in a disciplined manner," he said.

Vrushabhavathi fire leaves Mysuru Road locals worried

No CCTV cameras at spot, difficult to identify culprits: BBMP official

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

A major fire broke out at Vrushabhavathi Valley on Mysuru Road on Monday at around 10 am, with smoke from the site engulfing Mysuru Road, panicking commuters.

Two fire tenders were pressed into service to douse the fire close to Jayaram Das Junction, near Arvind Mills. It was the same location where the retaining wall of the valley had collapsed after rains last year.

While preliminary information revealed that miscreants had set a pile of garbage and weeds ablaze, it was later pointed out that paint, varnish, waste sponge and garbage that were bundled caught fire.

"The intensity of the blaze was so great that all the garbage and combustible material in the vicinity got burnt," said a BBMP official.

Locals rued that despite the Karnataka State Pollution Control Board working on controlling pollution, effluents can still be seen floating in the water body. Residents and members of Nammami Vrushabhavathi demanded that there be proper coordination between all agencies to ensure that such incidents do not recur.

Fire personnel tackle the blaze in Vrushabhavathi Valley in Bengaluru on Monday.

KSPCB Member Secretary Srinivasulu said he has sought a detailed report from BBMP and BWSSB. A meeting will be held to decide the next course.

Raghavendra, assistant executive engineer, BBMP, said that while CCTVs were being installed at those areas where garbage was frequently being dumped, a proposal was also being made to install them at the least expected spots so as to nab culprits. He added that since there was no CCTV camera towards the Namma Metro line, they were unable to find the culprits.

Environment and Ecology Minister C P Yogeshwar said that he was not aware of the issue, but assured that action would be taken, and stated that a plan was being prepared to take all measures to control pollution in the valley.

HC junks law varsity notice on exams

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

THE Karnataka High Court on Monday quashed a decision by the Bar Council of India and Karnataka State Law University to conduct intermediate semester exams to first to fourth-year students of five-year law course.

Justice R Devdas passed the order, while disposing of the petitions filed by B Ritvik Balanagraj and other students.

The court said that the press release on November 1, 2020 by the Bar Council of India and the circular on November 9, 2020 by the Karnataka State Law University are set aside with respect to intermediate semester exams.

IN THE HC

Senior counsel AS Ponnanna, representing a petitioner, contended that when the UGC has issued guidelines directing promotion of university students to the next year awarding 50 per cent of marks based on internal assessments and another 50 per cent on the basis of previous exams, which was also upheld by the Supreme Court, the University and the Bar Council cannot compel students to write the exams.

Quashing the timetable announced by the Karnataka State Law University for first to fourth-year students, along with the notifications dated January 13 and 29, 2021, the court said the University may announce a fresh timetable for odd semesters only.

Sasi returns, chants unity mantra

Says focus should now be on defeating common political adversary from capturing power

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Chennai/Krishnagiri/Tirupathur /Bengaluru

AFTER a gap of four years, VK Sasikala, the one-time confidante of former chief minister J Jayalalithaa, returned to Tamil Nadu chanting en route the unity mantra. "The focus must be on defeating the common political adversary (DMK)," was her message. She left for Chennai from a resort in Bengaluru — where she was under quarantine after Covid treatment — at 7.45am, accompanied by her nephew and AMMK general secretary TTV Dhinakaran.

"The Kazhagam (party) has faced many trials and tribulations," she said. "Yet, it has managed to rise again from its ashes like a phoenix bird. My objective is to check our common political adversary (DMK) from capturing power. To achieve that, cadre of Puratchi Thalaivar and Puratchi Thalaivi (MG Ramachandran and J Jayalalithaa) have to function unitedly. We should not give room for the 'divide and rule tricks' of our political adversary. This was the wish of Puratchi Thalaivi (Jayalalithaa) and to follow that is our duty," she added.

Before leaving Bengaluru, Sasikala offered prayers to her close aide and former Tamil Nadu chief minister the late J Jayalalithaa.

As she left the resort, her followers broke coconuts in front of her SUV, which was sporting an AIADMK flag. They showered her vehicle with flowers and she also posed for selfies with them, sitting inside the vehicle.

The police had denied permission to hold any procession. Sasikala's private convoy of seven to eight vehicles passed through Ballari Road, KR Puram, Marathahalli and reached Attibele, on the Karnataka-Tamil Nadu border. The city police escorted her vehicle to the border and the movement of these vehicles slowed down the traffic.

High drama as customs checks former UAE consul-general's luggage

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Kochi

DRAMATIC scenes unfolded at the Air Cargo Complex in Thiruvananthapuram airport on Monday when customs officials insisted on checking former UAE consul-general Jamal Hussain Al Zaabi's luggage which was being sent to the Gulf country. An official of the UAE Consulate objected to the checking, citing diplomatic immunity.

According to customs officials, as Al Zaabi is a suspect in four cases related to gold smuggling through the diplomatic baggage, it was decided to check the bags that were brought by a UAE diplomat to the cargo complex to be sent on a flight to Dubai. Last week, the former consul-general wrote to customs authorities on sending his belongings which he had left behind in Thiruvananthapuram while returning to the UAE in April last year.

"When the former consul-general sought the permission, we had clarified that the baggage would be checked as he is a suspect in four cases. We had informed the matter to the Ministry of External Affairs and took permission. We had told the diplomats that the baggage would be examined in their presence which would be videographed," a customs official said.

> When the former consul-general sought the permission, we had clarified that the baggage would be checked as he is a suspect in four cases. We had informed the matter to the Ministry of External Affairs and took permission

However, the diplomat who brought the bags to the cargo complex did not cooperate with the agreed procedure. "The diplomat said he had to speak to the UAE ambassador to India before opening the baggage. He said that it was an unprecedented procedure. However, we checked the bags and some electronic goods like mobile phones and hard discs were found. The entire procedure was videographed which started around noon. After checking and documentation, the cargo will be cleared before Tuesday morning," the customs official said.

He said Al Zaabi cannot claim diplomatic immunity for baggage movement as his term at the consulate ended last year. "He is no more the consul-general and cannot claim diplomatic immunity. There was nothing illegal in checking his baggage. But we took the permission of the Ministry of External Affairs."

POWER CAPACITY

Incorrect, says KPTCL of CAG report

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

FOLLOWING the report by the Comptroller and Auditor General of India (CAG), Karnataka, on public sector undertakings for the year ended March 2019, the Karnataka Power Transmission Corporation Limited (KPTCL) has stated that the former arrived at the conclusion by arithmetically working out the peak load of 12,877MW, and a redundancy of 27 per cent, leading to a total transmission capacity of 16,354MW.

In the report tabled before the State legislature on February 3, the CAG stated that KPTCL created excess transmission capacity of Rs 3,870 crore, way beyond the norms in the Manual on Transmission Planning Criteria, and the burden was passed on to consumers by way of rise in power tariff.

KPTCL clarified to CAG that KERC conducted checks of capital works from 2014 to 2017 by a third party, after which it allowed capital expenditure in the transmission tariff to be passed on to consumers. KERC has concurred with such capital expenditure.

KPTCL said that facilitating power evacuation by generators, renewable energy generators must also run, for which energy is required. It also stated that transmission capacity is not defined, as against what CAG has stated in its report.

Two startups sign pact to launch space taxis

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

TWO space startups — Skyroot Aerospace and Bellatrix Aerospace who had both won this year's National Startup Awards — on Monday entered into a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) to use the Orbital Transfer Vehicle (OTV) being developed by Bellatrix in the upper stage of Vikram series of launch vehicles being developed by Skyroot.

This is among the first contracts between Indian space startups after the Indian Space Research Organisation (ISRO) and the Union government promised support to private space companies through creation of IN-SPACE and announcement of new space law.

An OTV is a spacecraft that can perform various in-orbit operations, including deployment of customer payload to precise orbits, thus allowing a launch vehicle to deliver satellites to more orbits than what was conventionally possible.

In simple terms, it is like a taxi in space to take satellites to their operational orbits.

Skyroot and Bellatrix plan to have the first mission of a Vikram launcher with an Orbital Transfer Vehicle by 2023.

PURI JAGANNATH ROLLBACK A LESSON FOR THE FUTURE

The controversy over the draft heritage bylaws for the Puri Sri Jagannath temple notified by the National Monuments Authority (NMA), which was fast building up as yet another Centre versus state issue in Odisha, has been quickly doused with the Union Ministry of Culture withdrawing the rules on Monday. The proposed norms for the temple of Odisha's most revered Lord, and imposing restrictions on constructions and developmental works around it had evoked outrage. The timing of the bylaws, when much progress has been made on the heritage corridor project that entails beautification and all-round development of the temple periphery by the state government, was put to question. Understandably, there was a big political backlash against the NMA move from not only the ruling BJD but also the BJP. CM Naveen Patnaik paid a visit to the temple to send a message and demanded immediate rollback. MPs of the BJP from Odisha, including two Union ministers, followed by another from the BJD, met Union Culture Minister Prahlad Patel, leading to the withdrawal.

This newspaper broke the story on the restrictive bylaws framed by the NMA, which has now hopefully reached closure. It has been two years since the BJD government announced the ambitious heritage corridor project under which encroachments were demolished and land was acquired to create a secure zone for the shrine and a spate of amenities for devotees who throng the venerated dham in lakhs from across the globe every year. The project was taken up with much fanfare and every detail was in the public domain—which is why it was surprising that regulations for such a sensitive matter could be formulated without consultation with the state government or the Shree Jagannath Temple Administration. Patel's statement that the draft bylaws were notified without the knowledge of the NMA chairman is even more intriguing. The abode of Lord Jagannath is not just another monument of antiquity; it is an inseparable part of Odisha's socio-religious and cultural heritage. Now that sanity has prevailed, the central monuments authority should be careful before treading on emotive matters. This must be a lesson for the future.

THE SASI FACTOR IN TAMIL NADU POLITICS

A scriptwriter of late DMK chief M Karunanidhi's calibre couldn't have done better. Just months ahead of an election that will decide the future of two Dravidian parties that have dominated Tamil Nadu's politics for about half a century, a polarising figure returns from years in prison. V K Sasikala's return to Tamil Nadu on Monday, after serving a four-year sentence in a disproportionate assets case, was as dramatic as her departure. Greeted by supporters throughout her journey from Bengaluru, where she had also been treated for Covid-19, she made a stop near Vellore to end speculation on at least one front. The confidante of late Chief Minister J Jayalalithaa—expelled from the party in the course of events following the AIADMK supremo's death—has no plans to retire quietly into the background. She will return to active politics, she said, while seated in a car bearing the party flag.

What impact she may have on the upcoming elections will depend on how her parleys with the AIADMK fare. Since her departure, Chief Minister Edappadi K Palaniswami has stabilised a shaky government, while consolidating his own base within the party. Palaniswami and others have made it clear that Sasikala, who claims to be general secretary of the party, will not be accepted into it. Indeed, being in power and having managed the Covid crisis well enough, the AIADMK today is hardly the party of 2017. With resources and power on their side, Palaniswami and co appear to have the upper hand. The underwhelming performance of Sasikala's nephew T T V Dhinakaran's AMMK in the 2019 Parliamentary elections revealed that even the support from their Thevar community could not be relied on to buoy them to a seat. Similarly, while the expelled leader enjoys pockets of support within the party, it seems too limited. In her statement, Sasikala has called for party unity against a common enemy (the DMK), suggesting reconciliation might trump revenge in the face of an election. For the people of Tamil Nadu, another political churn is obviously in the offing.

Should leaders who lead mass movements first work on an exit plan or should they think of sharp bends that lie ten steps ahead?

FARMERS, ABHIMANYU TRAP AND THE SMILE OF KING

AMIT BANDRE

SUGATA SRINIVASARAJU
Senior journalist and author

In the intervening days of January, between the birthday of Martin Luther King Jr. and the martyrdom of Mahatma Gandhi, I had an engaging conversation with a veteran, non-violent agitationist who had also become a litigious public intellectual. He had not been cynical that change had not come despite his relentless years in courtrooms and torn tents by the street. However, he believed in that simple, self-effacing thought: ek dhakka aur do. Give it another try, give it one more push.

Invariably, the conversation, which happened a day before January 26, veered around the farmers' protest happening at multiple points outside Delhi. An important question was raised. There was also a context to the question—the Gandhian had just come back from Delhi after expressing his solidarity with the farmers. Anyway, the question was: Should the protesting farmers have claimed democratic victory after the Supreme Court suspended the laws for 18 months? This was not the kind of question that would be settled with a dumb agreement or a passionate disagreement. It created a labyrinth of fascinating arguments.

Should the farmers have agreed to something that looked like a clever postponement of their demand, or a clever deferment of the problem? Since the farmers are demanding that the laws be repealed, can suspension be treated as victory? But the larger issue here is should victory in a public battle be viewed in absolutist terms? Or, do a sum of small victories create a mirage of a big victory? Therefore, should the farmers have seen the suspension of the laws as a small victory, and then accumulated such small victories over a period of time to claim a larger victory. Should they have dispersed to deepen the movement across India and educate the primary stakeholders? Or is it erroneous to frame things in terms of victories and defeats when it comes to mass movements? There can only be learnings, unlearnings and impact.

Another related idea: Should those who get into public battles escape the Abhimanyu trap? Obviously, the reference here is to the Mahabharata, where Abhimanyu the brave enters a defensive battle formation, a chakravyuha or padmavyuha, with half-knowledge. That is, he knows how to break into the military formation but does not possess knowledge to exit its complexity. If this analogy is extended, should leaders who lead mass movements first work on an exit plan or should they think of sharp bends that lie ten steps ahead? From the many accounts of Gandhi's work, it is clear that he meticulously thought through his campaigns. That he knew where to get off and where to persist. There were many occasions when he disappointed his followers by calling off campaigns, abruptly, for reasons and paths only he could foresee. For Gandhi, victories were imagined small, but the cumulative effect of these victories was big, and the impact eternal.

Martin Luther King Jr, who was greatly influenced by Gandhi, not just borrowed his philosophy of passive resistance and truth-force, but continuously deliberated on his tactical sense. From this he developed an independent strategy of organisation and tactics. This is apparent if one reads Clayborne Carson's reconstructed life of the Black civil rights leader. Even after the success of a well-strategised Montgomery bus boycott in 1955-56, King fails in Albany. But the manner in which he reflects on his failure is extraordinary. He says instead of aiming for a big victory, a small victory would have been symbolic. It would have galvanised more support and boosted morale. However, he concludes that like the victory in Montgomery was not total, the failure in Albany was 'far from an unqualified failure.' It helped the civil rights campaign in other cities once they had analysed the defeat and sharpened tactics. Of course, even a failed situation in Albany ensured thousands of Blacks entered the voters list, and in the governor's race later, a moderate had defeated a segregationist. King concluded that the people of Albany had straightened their backs and as Gandhi had said, 'No one can ride on the back of a man unless it is bent'. King's campaign in Birmingham next was so much more about tactics, timing, leadership, legal manoeuvres, raising money, resolving moral anguish and 'ruthless realities'.

There is no doubt that emotion draws people out to the streets, but then it is an arduous task to channel emotion into constructive political action. There is a slowness and detachment required, without of course losing passion and direction

Coming back to the farmers' protest, were tactics discussed—diligently and pragmatically? The Gandhian was thinking aloud. Why is there an overwhelming desire to create a spectacle of the protest? Did nobody tell the farmers that a tractor rally on January 26, in and around Delhi, was a huge risk? What if something went wrong? Who would give the call to an emotionally charged crowd to retreat if the plan went haywire? What is the symbolism of such an unwieldy enterprise? He wondered with enormous concern, and the next day, as feared, the rally did go wrong. It was sabotaged. There is no doubt that emotion draws people out to the streets, but then it is an arduous task to channel emotion into constructive political action. There is a slowness and detachment required, without of course losing passion and direction.

At another level, in terms of rhetoric, the Gandhian was annoyed that people were quick to pronounce the end of democracy, the end of the idea of India, the end of this and that they had learnt in college, but never spoke of the specifics of recouping, revival and leadership. That is where tactics would be essential and that was hard work. Interestingly, Robyn Rihanna Fenty, the singer who created a storm with her question on the farmers' protest, was mirroring King's spirit and method of enquiry. Nobody thought about it. She was either trolled or made an instant icon of the protest. Nobody reflected on the broad smile of King that was her Twitter handle's cover image.

OPTICS VS REALITY, A TAKE ON THE NEW BUDGET

AMITABHA BHATTACHARYA
Former IAS officer who has also worked in the private sector and with the UNDP

The Budgetary exercise is essentially a bureaucratic one framed in a political context. A carefully crafted act involving the whole Central government, mainly for items in the Union and concurrent lists of the Constitution, the Budget seeks to strike a balance between anticipated revenue and expenditure, between stark reality and pleasant visibility (read optics), between raising expectations and seeking to fulfil them. It reflects the resolve of the government while keeping regional aspirations, electoral compulsions as also demands of new policies and legislations in mind. The final product is put together by a team of astute bureaucrats under broad political supervision and the process is marked by prudence, solidity and credibility. But since civil servants are neither great innovators nor aspiring martyrs, the annual Budget often turns out to be rather predictable and lacking in punch, requiring a careful reading between the lines.

If the idea is to impress the public with a startling announcement, a substantial outlay may be shown against a scheme or sector that is not yet ripe or institutionally prepared to spend a large part of the allocation. For instance, if a huge sum is allocated for a major project in a backward area even before the detailed project report is finalised, obviously such an allocation will mainly be symbolic—good optics.

It should be remembered that if the ruling party has enough numbers, passing a legislation or preparing a national policy—though important in themselves—is often easy to accomplish. Far more difficult is the phase of implementation. Hurriedly passed laws or quickly drafted policies may reflect the seriousness of government intentions but are likely to face major problems at the operational stage. For implementation to be meaningful, appropriate institutions and adequate financial resources are both equally important. After all, a government's commitment to a cause can be measured by two indicators: the quantum of funds allocated against its requirement and whether the institutional architecture is in place, manned by the right kind of personnel.

While each aspect is being analysed threadbare by experts, lobbyists and individuals likely to be affected, let me just touch upon the two ministries dealing with education (from an expenditure perspective) and disinvestment/privatisation (from the revenue angle).

In the case of the former, the National Education Policy 2020 (NEP) was announced with much fanfare. Many progressive ideas were incorporated in it with the explicit admission of our poor record in public expenditure (not to speak of the dismal one in terms of per capita expenditure, especially in school education) and with a promise to raise it to 6% of GDP in the next few years. However, the economy being in a bad shape, none expected a substantial rise. But to have an allocation of ₹93,224 crore, which even in absolute terms is much less than ₹99,312 crore of 2020-21, was never anticipated. In 2020-21, the education sector had been virtually paralysed by the pandemic. Naturally, the utilisation of resources was poor. But that is not a valid reason to cut the outlay for 2021-22 substantially.

It is widely acknowledged that the 3Cs—the CAG, CVC and CBI—have been adversely affecting the initiatives or risk-taking abilities of PSU managements. So to expect officials in the Department of Investment and Public Asset Management, however honest and competent, to vigorously push the agenda of privatisation seems optimistic

The ideas of setting up the regulatory architecture under new legislation, establishing a central university at Leh (hopefully without destroying the fragile ecosystem there), Eklavya schools in tribal areas, etc., are fine and would necessitate huge expenditure. Allocating a sum of ₹50,000 crore to the National Research Foundation (NRF) over five years is also welcome, but it requires to be seen whether the NRF would be in a position to absorb such funding. But the NEP promises much more. Admittedly, much of public expenditure on education comes from the states. But if the Centre does not lead the way, its moral power to persuade the states to step up spending in this sector gets eroded. Thus, the deal for education is poor optics for it dimly lights up the NEP.

With regards to disinvestment and privatisation, the record so far has been far from encouraging. Year after year, the targets remain unrealised. The reasons are not difficult to fathom. Both within the government and without, it is widely acknowledged that the 3Cs—the CAG, CVC and CBI—have been adversely affecting the initiatives or risk-taking abilities of PSU managements. Therefore, to expect the officials in the Department of Investment and Public Asset Management, however honest and competent, to vigorously push the agenda of privatisation seems optimistic. None wants to be hauled up, years after their retirement, by investigating agencies and perhaps even courts for decisions taken in good faith. Despite amendments to the Prevention of Corruption Act and the appointment of Lokpal quite some time ago, the government does not appear to have succeeded in instilling the confidence that officials taking risks in decision-making will be protected from undue harassment and possible prosecution. In such a scenario, and based on past record, targeting to raise ₹1.75 lakh crore may be good optics but appears far from realistic.

Fortunately, Budgetary figures are not cast in stone. The allocations can always be revised depending on various compelling factors as the months pass by. After a year ravaged by the pandemic, it is evident that many bold measures have been announced—especially on creation of physical infrastructure. The Budget is also more transparent, clearing up old dues and displaying a reformist agenda. With the pandemic waning and the economy slowly returning to normal, it would not be irrational to hope that allocation to social sectors like education will be enhanced in real terms in sync with the new education policy. Attempts to augment the human capital deserve a much higher priority.

Grim reminder of dangers

The glacial burst in Chamoli district, Uttarakhand, has claimed several lives. Global warming is cited as the cause. Abusing Mother Nature is bound to have harsh repercussions. Previous calamities were grim reminders of the threat in this region, yet hydro power plants were constructed there.

Biju C Mathew, Thiruvananthapuram

Facing the consequences

It is time to remember environmentalist Sundarlal Bahuguna's warnings to successive governments about the dangers of constructing dams and power plants in the fragile Himalayan region. His words were ignored and we are facing the consequences of this today.

C S Hayavadana Rao, Bengaluru

Preserve purity of nature

The current tragedy in Uttarakhand is not just a natural calamity. It is due to the environmental pollution and global warming that man has caused to nature in the name of development. We need to preserve the purity of nature, especially in high-risk places like the Himalayas.

B Veerakumaran Thampi, Pattom

Reconsider future projects

The tragic death of over 15 people in Uttarakhand is unfortunate. Despite warnings by environmentalists against constructing dams in the Himalayan region, the governments have decided to go ahead with them. One hopes this tragedy forces governments to reconsider future projects in such areas.

Bijumon P N, Idukki

Alternative viewpoints

This is with reference to 'Flag at Red Fort was India's Capitol Hill moment' (Feb 8). Former VP Hamid Ansari's comment that alternate viewpoints have always been important in a democracy like ours is apt. Though he praised the legislative process, his disagreement on passing the farm bills without debate is noteworthy.

N A Joseph, Ettumanoor

Developed nations selfish

This is with reference to Vaccine nationalism exacerbates global faultlines (Feb 8). China and developed nations are selfish to hoard vaccines. India, itself beset by the pandemic, stands out as a humanitarian country by supplying vaccines to needy nations.

Hemanth Bhide, Mangaluru

Can't run on sentiments

The Centre has proposed privatising the Vizag Steel Plant due to its ₹22,000 crore debt burden and other dismal logistics. One must see the situation pragmatically and let the Centre do what is needed in the larger interests of the nation. The Centre can't run on people's sentiments.

K Nehru Patnaik, Visakhapatnam

High rates not justified

Cabinet Minister Smriti Irani's claim that the Centre is trying its best to reduce fuel prices is hollow. Poorer countries like Pakistan and Bangladesh still sell petrol at nominal prices. Ergo, India's sky-high rates are not justifiable. Both Centre and state governments must understand the miseries of the common people.

Thomas K M, Muvattupuzha

Politicising Sabarimala

The Congress in Kerala now seems keen to appease the sentiments of Hindu voters by dragging Sabarimala into its election campaign. Many of its leaders did not fight for the cause but it is now suddenly ready to implement laws to restrict women.

Gokul Krishna, Kottayam

Horrendous killing

The horrendous killing of her six-year-old son by a woman in Palakkad district, Kerala, allegedly as a sacrifice to the almighty, is unsettling. Keralites take pride in their high literacy rate and the amount of social evils that have been eradicated, so this is horrific. The woman should be looked at by a psychiatrist.

Lives and dreams trapped in ill-fated tunnel in Uttarakhand following devastating floods, near and dear ones spend anxious hours praying for a miracle

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

SEVAK Bakhala got a call from his brother Sunil at 9.42 am on Sunday. A worker in Tapovan hydro power project in Uttarakhand's Chamoli district, the resident of Ranchi said he was about to enter the under-construction tunnel. Anxious to speak to his brother again, Sevak has not heard from him since. Sunil is among those trapped in the ill-fated tunnel following the glacier burst.

Of the nearly 200 persons missing after the disaster, many are from other states who had left home in search of a living. Over 50 are from UP, 13 from Jharkhand and a few each from Bihar and Nepal. There are many locals as well. For their near ones, time came to a standstill ever since they heard of the mishap. Some of these states have set up emergency control rooms and released helpline numbers for the relatives of the workers.

"At 9:42 am, my brother Sunil called me up and said he and two others were about to enter the tunnel. Six more from our village had gone in before them. After that, we tried to contact him a hundred times, but he is not reachable on phone," said Sunil's brother. "We have requested the district administration to help us trace them."

In Uttarakhand's Raini village, Bansilal is grappling with fear. His son Mahendra is trapped in the tunnel. Although rescue teams are working overtime, the father has left it to god. "Seems like fate has got us. His footwear shop got closed due to the lockdown. He got a job there (hydelpower project) in November. It has been more than 24 hours since he got trapped. All I can do is pray to God," he says.

Many others are waiting at the rescue site. Madan Singh, 60, is hoping that his nephews Arvind Singh, Kishan Singh and Rohit Singh come out safe. All three are in their 20s.

"Arvind is a football fan. He would switch to sports channels when matches were on, to the annoyance of others at home. I want him to fight this and survive," said Madan, before bursting into tears.

In Uttar Pradesh, relatives of those who are untraceable are running out of patience. The state government has set up a round-the-clock control room and released helpline numbers. Relief commissioner Sanjay Goyal said his office is compiling a list of people from the state who have been impacted by the tragedy. "Those who want to report missing persons should register on 1070 or 9454441036. We are coordinating with the Uttarakhand government to provide relief to the affected persons."

There are similarly heartbreaking scenes in Patna. Manish Kumar, an engineer in a private power project near Joshimath, had got married last December. His family is unable to trace him after the disaster and his wife has fallen sick after hearing about the incident. Manish's elder brother has left for Uttarakhand with his maternal uncle.

For these families, the next few hours will be difficult. Along with lives, many dreams will be swept away in the tragedy. Their near ones will find it hard because they will be suffering due to no fault of theirs.

Chet Singh is a differently able person. His wife Madhuri Devi was killed in the floods. "My wife had done no wrong to anyone in her life. Now, where do I look for her? She is never going to come back. These blasts and projects are to be blamed for this. Our lives do not matter when it comes to these projects," wailed Singh.

It's ministry vs ministry over 6 hydel projects

RICHA SHARMA @ New Delhi

GIVEN the fragile nature of the Uttarakhand ecosystem, should hydel power projects be permitted in the region? The question became m ore acute after the 2013 Kedarnath tragedy that killed over 4,000 people. However, two ministries at the Centre are banging their heads unable to take a call on the way forward.

The latest face-off between the Union Ministry of Environment, Forests and Climate Change (MoEFCC) and Jal Shakti ministry is over a draft policy framework drafted by the former over the impact of hydel projects in the state. While the Jal ministry has categorically said it is not in favour of any hydel projects in the region, the MoEFCC draft has not cleared the air on six projects sanctioned by it before 2013, where 50% investment has already been made. Their promoters are THDC India Ltd., NHPC Limited, NTPC Limited, GMR Group (1 each) and Super Hydro Electric Power Ltd (2).

"The draft is vague. It says six projects will be allowed, but has not clarified their impact," a top official of the Jal ministry said.

Many studies foretelling Chamoli disaster gathered dust

VINEET UPADHYAY @ Raini (Uttarakhand)

SCIENTISTS, experts, conservationists and activists have pointed out lacklustre attitude of the governments when it comes to maintaining balance in development activities and environment.

Ajay Gautam, a Delhi-based activist who has filed range of PIL in Uttarakhand High Court requesting strengthening of disaster management systems said, "I had filed one PIL in year 2014 requesting the court to order installation of warning systems including alarm systems. The court had ordered the same in year 2018 but no compliance was done by the state government."

Ravi Chopra, chairman of Supreme Court-appointed High Powered Committee (HPC) on 900kms Char Dham Pariyojana connecting four shrines - Kedarnath, Badrinath, Gangotri and Yamunotri commenting on the issue said, "In 2014 we had submitted a report warning about hydropower projects... which could result in a major disaster and had recommended cancellation of 23 such projects."

However, nothing was done.

Views are still divided as to what caused this disaster. The experts have zeroed in on two causes — an avalanche or a glacial lake burst.

"An avalanche is a volume starts moving from high altitude and gathers momentum destroying everything in its path. While glacial lake burst is a result of rainfall and snow, when it collapses, everything in its path gets swamped. If it's glacial lake burst then it is a big failure or our remote sensing agencies," said Chopra.

They also added that the cause of the disaster needs to be investigated.

DP Dobhal, former glaciologist at Dehradun's Wadia Institute of Himalayan Geology, said, "Lake formation must have happened for sure which eventually breached today and caused the floods. However, an extensive investigation is needed to confirm the reason which triggered this."

He added that the heavy sediments in flood waters indicate that an avalanche or glacial debris could have dammed river waters resulting in the burst.

'Development must factor in impact of climate change'

Dr. Anjal Prakash, Research Director and Adjunct Associate Professor at the Indian School of Business, is lead author of the ongoing 6th Assessment report of UN's Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change. In an interview to TNIE's Richa Sharma, Prakash said projects in Himalayan region should be evaluated for strict environmental impacts for minimising disturbance and maximising benefits for people. Excerpts.

What is the reason behind the glacial avalanche in Uttarakhand?
It is very early to draw any conclusion but what we know from various reports is that a section of a hanging glacier in the upper reaches of Uttarakhand broke, probably due to snowfall or bedrock failure. This may have led to the landslide and the avalanche.

Is it a possible impact of climate change?
Prima-facia, this looks like a climate change event due to global warming. It is no brainer now, after a series of reports from IPCC, that the global warming has huge impact on glaciers. Majority of glaciers are retreating and a recent estimate show that about two- thirds of the glaciers will melt if we continue to have policies responsible for global warming.

Given the infrastructure projects happening in Uttarakhand, how much does that impact?
This event has happened in very high mountainous regions which are inhabitable for humans. The infrastructure development such as roads and hydropower is being done in downstream areas. What we need is an understanding about the climate-related risks and what impacts it has on the development projects. So, the development projects must take climate change and its impacts into account while planning and executing any project including infrastructure.

What lessons do we learn from this disaster?
I would like to focus on three aspects — one is to accept that climate change is real and is impacting our lives and in many ways. Second, we need to focus a lot on adaptation while working towards mitigating some of the impacts of climate change, which is a long-term phenomenon. Third, the Himalayan region is one of the least monitored regions. The more we study, the more we know the implications which will help us in charting out policy measures to protect ourselves from these climatic events.

Sleeping in forest, villagers of Raini demand relocation

VINEET UPADHYAY @ Raini (Uttarakhand)

AROUND 350-400 residents of three villages including Raini villagers are sleeping in forest areas due to fear of Sunday disaster where 26 are already dead. Residents of three other villages are also finding suitable shelters to spent the night.

Sohan Rana, son of Gaura Devi, a legendary woman who led Chipko Movement in 1973 said, "We ate apprehensive about the repetition of what happened on Sunday. We don't want to get caught sleeping by the flash flood and die."

The locals said that they will continue doing this until they feel safe. They told TNIE that they have been demanding the state government to move them to some other location.

Shobha Rana, a resident of Raini Chak (Laata) said, "We are carrying goods, food, beddings, warm clothes and other essetials to spend the night in the cold. We find the place suitable and stay there."

The locals said that they will continue doing this until they feel safe in other places.

GLACIAL BURST, HOW IT HAPPENS
Experts are still to confirm what caused the sudden flood in Chamoli. Although there are different theories like a landslide or even an avalanche, the government has so far maintained it was a glacial burst on river Dhauliganga. The following describes what is a glacial burst....

Covid shot coverage 60% in 13 states

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

ON a day the number of Covid-19 vaccinations crossed 56 lakh mark, Union health secretary Rajesh Bhushan reviewed the status and progress of the immunisation drive and urged states to improve the number of average vaccinations per session.

Of the total figure, 52,66,175 beneficiaries are healthcare workers and 3,70,693 are frontline workers. There are 13 states and UTs in India now where at least 60% of the targeted healthcare workers have received the first jabs while this percentage is less than 40 in 12 states and Union Territories.

In the review meeting, the state health secretaries meanwhile were asked to analyse the daily variation in the number of average vaccinations and take necessary steps to increase them.

Health secretary Rajesh Bhushan also asked states to ensure 100 % saturation of people who have already been registered on CoWin digital platform and also advised them to organize simultaneous vaccination sessions every day in the health facility wherever possible.

Every state was directed to ensure that all healthcare workers should be scheduled for vaccination at least once before February 20 and immediately thereafter mop-up rounds should be organised for them.

VK Singh scores LAC self-goal, China bristles

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

CHINA on Monday lashed out at India over Minister of State for Road Transport VK Singh's comments on India transgressing the LAC more times than China saying it was an unwitting confession by India.

"This is an unwitting confession by the Indian side. For a long time, the Indian side has conducted frequent acts of trespass in the border area in an attempt to encroach on China's territory and constantly created disputes and frictions, which is the root cause of the tensions at the China-India border. We urge the Indian side to follow through on the consensus, agreements and treaties it reached with China, and uphold peace and stability in the border regions with concrete actions," a Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesperson said.

> India and China are ancient civilizations. I hope that these countries have more people to people contacts which will lead to better bilateral relations— Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesperson

Singh on Sunday had said that India has transgressed the LAC more times than China. "Let me assure you, if China has transgressed 10 times, we must have done it at least 50 times. China had transgressed many times over the years with its own perception of the LAC. Similarly, none of you come to know how many times we have transgressed as per our perception. Chinese media does not cover it," he said in Madurai.

Interestingly, the rebuttal to Singh's comments from the Chinese foreign ministry comes on a day when Chinese Ambassador to India Sun Weidong called for India and China to build bridge of trust and friendship.

"India and China are ancient civilisations that date back to over 2000 years. It is important that both build bridges of trust and friendship...," he added.

LS deadlock ends after Rajnath appeal

Minister urges MPs to maintain tradition of thanking Prez; Adhir Ranjan says govt turned deaf ear to farm protest

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE Lok Sabha finally resumed its normal functioning on Monday after a week-long disruption over the three Central agri laws following an appeal by Defence Minister Rajnath Singh that it was a duty of every member to maintain the tradition of passing the Motion of Thanks to President's address.

After the House convened at 5 pm, Singh said the tradition of thanking the President has been continuing for long and it should not be broken in a healthy democracy.

The Opposition, however, went all guns blazing against the government, demanding accountability for the miscreants hoisting the flag at the Red Fort while alleging that the ruling dispensation has been resorting to dividing the ranks of the agitating farmers.

Resuming the discussion, BJP MP Locket Chatterjee focused her attention on the incumbent Trinamool Congress-led West Bengal government in a bid to send out the message in the run-up to the Assembly elections. She charged that CM Mamata Banerjee is practising the double standard, saying that she sends her party MPs to the Ghazipur border in Delhi to join the farmers' protests but doesn't allow the implementation of the Central scheme in the state.

Leader of the Congress Adhir Ranjan Chowdhury led the Opposition charge against the government, alleging that the government has turned deaf ear to the agitation. "It was the government which allowed the tractor rally on a specified route. How did the farmers deviate from the approved route and how could they enter a heavily guarded Red Fort. Who will take the responsibility," he asked.

The Congress leader also questioned the scale of the reaction of the government to the remark of an "18-year-old climate activist", reminding that the PM also had taken part in a public rally in the US. PM Narendra Modi, Defence Minister Rajnath Singh, Home Minister Amit Shah were present in the Lower House when Chowdhury spoke.

TMC MP Mahua Moitra, who was repeatedly interrupted for her remarks against a former CJI, alleged that "the government has turned propaganda and disinformation into a cottage industry".

Maha govt to probe celebs' tweets on farm stirs, BJP fumes

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @ Mumbai

THE Maharashtra government's intelligence department will conduct a probe into allegations some celebrities were pressured to post tweets with regard to the farmers' protest, said Home Minister Anil Deshmukh on Monday.

Deshmukh made the remarks on an online platform after the Congress, a ruling coalition ally in Maharashtra, sought an investigation into the BJP's alleged connection with recent tweets of some celebrities on the ongoing farm protest and to find out whether the saffron party "arm-twisted" them in posting those statements which were deemed pro-Centre.

In New Delhi, BJP president J P Nadda took a swipe at the Maharashtra government over the probe move, saying it has a unique model of governance that hails "noises of anarchy" from overseas but "harasses" patriotic Indians who stand for the nation.

"MVA in Maharashtra has a unique model of governance - hail noises of anarchy from overseas who show India in poor light but harass patriotic Indians who stand for the nation. It is difficult to decide what is more flawed: their priorities or their mindset?" Nadda tweeted.

Maharashtra Congress spokesperson Sachin Sawant and some other party leaders on Monday raised the demand for a probe into tweets before Deshmukh in a meeting via video conference.

A number of prominent personalities, including cricket icon Sachin Tendulkar and legendary singer Lata Mangeshkar, recently rallied around the central government on social media using hashtags #IndiaTogether and #IndiaAgainstPropaganda.

DDC CHAIRMEN POLLS

Big jolts to Gupkar alliance as NC loses Budgam, Kupwara

FAYAZ WANI @ Srinagar

THE faultlines in the six-party Gupkar alliance came to the fore once again during the election of chairpersons for the District Development Councils (DDCs) in Budgam and Kupwara districts on Monday.

The National Conference (NC) received a big jolt in Budgam where the party had won eight out of 14 seats and yet failed to get hold of the chairman's post as it did not receive support even from the Gupkar parties.

In Budgam DDC, the NC had won absolute majority by winning 8 out of 14 seats. Independents and PDF won two seats each while the PDP and JKPM (both Gupkar alliance constituents) won one seat each. Since the NC, PDP and JKPM are part of the Gupkar alliance, it could have easily garnered 10 votes for the chairman's post. However, during the election, PDP district president Nazir Ahmad Khan, who had won as an independent candidate, got elected. Nazir and NC's Abdul Ahad Dar secured 7 votes each for the chairman's post. Later, a draw of lots was held in which Nazir was declared successful.

The NC also lost control of Kupwara DDC, where Peoples Conference's Irfan Sultan Panditpori and Haji Farooq Mir were elected as chairman and vice-chairman respectively. An official said out of 13 DDC members, 9 members were present during the election, which satisfied the quorum limit. The four members who were absent belonged to the NC. In Kupwara, the PC had won 5 seats, NC 4, independents 3 and Apni Party 1 while the result of one seat is still awaited.

The NC alleged that administration in Kupwara flawed all the norms by "playing a partisan role to engineer a particular outcome". "The election proceedings were held behind a veil of secrecy at around 2 pm, much later than the predetermined time slot of 11 am to 1 pm. The administration held the election after our members left the venue around 1 pm," an NC spokesman said.

We are ready, says Tikait

"IF the government wants to hold talks, we are ready," he said. The previous 11 rounds had failed to end the deadlock with the farmers sticking to their demand for the repeal of three farm laws, too. Meanwhile, Dr Pal hit out at the prime minister's andolan jivi (professional protestors) remark, saying: "We are proud of being andolan jivi. Without andolan, nothing changes. The British left our country only due to andolan," he said. Tikait also sought to dismiss the remark saying that a protest that was earlier branded as Punjab's, and later described as Jat-Sikh agitation, has united farmers.

Modi takes dig at Cong while lauding Azad, refers to 'G-23' letter-writers

NEW DELHI: Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Monday took a dig at the Congress's leadership crisis, saying he hoped it would take its senior leader Ghulam Nabi Azad's remarks in the right spirit and not do something to the contrary by mistaking them as "advice of G-23".

During a discussion on Motion of Thanks in the Rajya Sabha, Modi said Azad had praised the Centre for conducting elections in J&K. "Ghulam Nabi ji has praised the elections for panchayats, BDCs and DDC held in J&K and I am grateful to him. But I also fear on this praise showered on me. I am confident that people in your party will take this in the right spirit and not mistake it as the advice of G-23 to do something opposite," the PM said. His reference was to the rift in the Congress and the group of 23 leaders (G-23) who had written to party chief Sonia Gandhi demanding an organisational overhaul.

The Congress accused him of overlooking the party's proposal on what lacks in the contentious three farm laws.

'Proud to be andolan jivi'

Soon after Modi invited farmers' unions to resume the dialogue with the government, the leaders said they were ready for the talks, but the Centre should send a fresh proposal, and fix the date and time.

Krantikari Kisan Union Punjab chief Darshan Pal said: "We are ready for talks. We are proud of the fact that we are 'andolan jivi', as the PM said. The British left the country only after we resorted to andolans (movements). The BJP and RSS have never ever done an andolan," he said. ENS

Bombay HC rejects Navlakha's bail application

MUMBAI: The Bombay High Court on Monday dismissed a statutory bail appeal of activist Gautam Navlakha, an accused in the Elgar Parishad-Maoist links case, saying it sees no reason to interfere with a special court's "well reasoned order" which earlier refused him bail.

Justices SS Shinde and MS Karnik said the 34 days that Navlakha spent under house arrest in 2018 could not be counted as the period spent in custody for consideration of the statutory bail. The civil rights activist was arrested by Pune police on August 28, 2018, but not taken in custody. Between August 28 and October 1, 2018, Navlakha was kept under house arrest. He also spent 11 days in the NIA's custody from April 14 to April 25 last year, after he surrendered following re-registration of an FIR against him in January 2020. Since then, he has remained in judicial custody at Taloja jail in Navi Mumbai. Bombay HC said while there was no doubt Navlakha's house arrest was a form of detention, the question before the court was whether the period of such house arrest was to be included in the period of custody, in which case he would qualify for default bail under CrPC Section 167(2). However, in its judgment, the HC answered the above question in negative.

Navlakha approached the HC last year, challenging the special NIA court's order of July 12, 2020 that rejected his plea for statutory bail. ENS

PANDEMIC IMPACT

In one & half months, Bengal received 10L applications for MGNREGS job cards

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Kolkata

HIGHLIGHTING the massive loss of livelihood in rural areas due to the Covid crisis, the West Bengal government has received over 10 lakh requests for job cards under the Centre's rural employment scheme in a one-and-half month period.

In April-May last year during the Covid-induced lockdown, 2.2 lakh applications were received for job cards under MGNREGS. Bengal saw the arrival of 14 lakh migrant workers from various states after the country went under lockdown.

As for the present numbers, government data showed a total of 2.21 crore people had visited 21,057 camps set up special camps set up in municipal and panchayat areas from December 1 to January 18. Of these visitors, 10,10,224 applied for job cards under MGNREGS.

The camps were set up for the state's public outreach programme Duare Sarkar, which aims to bring 11 state schemes such as Swastha Sathi, Khadya Sathi, and Kanyashree scheme to the doorsteps of the people.

> Many of the migrants informed the local administration in districts that they could not go back to their workplaces because operation at those places came to a halt
>
> Govt official

Sources in the state secretariat said a major chunk of the job-seekers are migrant workers who could not join their workplace and failed to get employment. "Many of the migrants informed the local administration in districts that they could not go back to their workplaces because operation at those places came to a halt," said an official.

"Around 3.81 lakh migrant workers were issued new job cards since April. None of the migrant workers had enlisted their names in the existing family job cards. The large numbers indicate that the problem is deeper," he added.

While the state has 1.39 crore MGNREGS card holders ever since the scheme was launched in 2007. The state has already created 34 crore man-days under the scheme exceeding the initial approved target of 22 crore.

"Other than migrant workers, a large section of workers in rural Bengal lost their livelihood after lockdown period. Some of them were running small shops which are not securing earnings. Some were working with some local units like rice mills and lost their jobs in the post-lockdown period as the mills are being run with lesser employees," said another official.

Shahnawaz tipped for Bihar finance

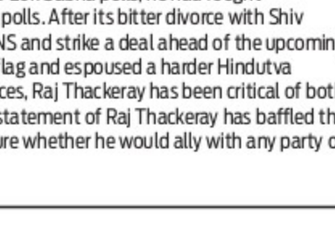
RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @ Patna

BJP's minority face Shahnawaz Hussain will be among the prominent leaders to be inducted in Nitish Kumar's Cabinet in Bihar on Tuesday. The BJP and JDU will maintain a full caste equation in the Cabinet in order to ensure representation of all, sources said.

Hussain is likely to become the finance minister. Besides Hussain, the BJP is likely to induct some new faces in the Cabinet, whereas the JDU will repeat some old faces. Speculations finally ended on Monday evening, with a decision to expand the Cabinet taken in the governor house. According to sources, Shahnawaz will be among others from BJP to swear in as minister.

It is also believed that former IPS officer turned MLA from Bhore in Gopalganj, Sunil Kumar may also swear in as a minister from the JDU quota. After Hussain, the second-most prominent face from BJP is Nitin Navin, the MLA from Bankipur in Patna. He belongs to the kayastha caste and has received a call from the party chief to take oath in the Cabinet.

Sources said this expansion may take place between 12 pm and 1pm. As many as 17 including nine from BJP may take oath as new ministers.



Cabinet berth

Shahnawaz Hussain is set to become the first influential face from the minority community in the Cabinet, which will balance the party's stand. He is likely to become the finance minister.

New Congress chief hopeful of ministerial post

Even though Nana Patole has been appointed as the new president of Maharashtra Congress, he seems to be unhappy as he wants some ministerial portfolio along with state president responsibility. The Congress high command has not given any promise in this regard but Patole is hopeful that the party will give him some or other ministerial berth. A ministerial post will also help him to retain the present government accommodations in Mumbai and get hold of resources to run the party smoothly. Otherwise, Mr Patole will have to run after his party ministers to meet the party expenses.

Raj Thackeray keeps BJP, MVA guessing over tie-up

Maharashtra Navnirman Sena chief Raj Thackeray continues to keep both the BJP and Maha Vikas Aghadi guessing about his next stand. After campaigning for Congress and the NCP candidates in 2019 Lok Sabha polls, he had fought separately in the Maharashtra Assembly polls. After its bitter divorce with Shiv Sena, the BJP tried to get close to the MNS and strike a deal ahead of the upcoming BMC polls. The MNS had changed party flag and espoused a harder Hindutva ideology. But in his recent press conferences, Raj Thackeray has been critical of both BJP and Maha Vikas Aghadi. The recent statement of Raj Thackeray has baffled the leaders of both parties and they are unsure whether he would ally with any party or go it all alone in the coming polls.

BJP cautious while criticising Sharad pawar

After several of its strategies towards NCP chief Sharad Pawar boomeranged, the BJP is treading cautiously when dealing with the veteran politician. Leaders of the BJP seems to be confused whether they should criticise Pawar or leave him untouched and target only other leaders of the Maha Vikas Aghadi. However, senior leaders of the saffron party in the state know that they can't leave Pawar out of their radar. Maharashtra BJP president Chandrakant Patil admitted that without criticising Sharad Pawar, the party would not grow in Maharashtra.

PM response awaited over Maratha quota

BJP Rajya Sabha MP Chhatrapati Sambhaji is waiting for a response from PM Narendra Modi to resolve the Maratha reservation issue. The BJP MP said he has written three letters to the PM seeking an appointment with him to discuss the Maratha reservation issue. He said only the prime minister can resolve the issue. At present the matter is in the Supreme Court. Since Sambhaji Maharaj is yet to get any response from the PM's office over his letters, other Maratha BJP leaders, who want to raise the reservation issue with centre leadership, are in confusion whether to take up the matter or not. They, too, are clueless why there is no response to Chhatrapati Sambhaji's letters.

China bullied Nepal into buying its Covid vaccine, leaked report shows

KATHMANDU

LEAKED documents of correspondence between Nepal's Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the Chinese Embassy in Kathmandu show that Beijing had put pressure on the Himalayan country to accept its Covid vaccine without its efficiency and efficacy being established.

Nepali media on Sunday published stories on the basis of the leaked correspondence which show how China made Nepal accept its Sinovac vaccine produced by Sinopharm without any further delay.

Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi held a telephone conversation with his Nepali counterpart Pradeep Kumar Gyawali on Friday and put pressure to accept the vaccines first under the condition that the details about the vaccines will be sent afterward; a topsy-turvy way of vaccine procurement.

Necessary documents will be provided later, but take the vaccine immediately, as per the letter the Chinese Embassy sent to the Nepal government, warning that otherwise the country may need to wait quite long to get the vaccine.

The Chinese Embassy said that the Nepali side is suggested to transport the Sinopharm vaccines to be donated to Nepal under grant assistance immediately.

"The Sinopharm vaccines are currently in high demand and short supply. In order to provide the vaccines to Nepal at the earliest and help Nepali people's fight against the pandemic, the Chinese side has again made arrangements to this end in coordination with Sinopharm.

"The relevant documents including legal disclaimer may be provided simultaneously or later," it said.

The letter went on to say: "If the Nepali side could not collect this batch of the vaccine as soon as possible, it will be redistributed by other commercial orders and the manufacturing of the vaccines for Nepal will have to be put on a much later list."

"The Embassy hopes that relevant Nepali authorities could facilitate the early approval and registration of Sinopharm vaccine for the emergency use." On January 31, the Chinese Embassy in Nepal stated that it would provide 3,00,000 doses of Sinovac vaccine to Nepal. IANS

Beijing's Sinovac yet to get the green light

The Nepal government has not given permission for the use of Chinese vaccines yet. Meanwhile, India shipped one million doses of Covishield vaccine to Kathmandu on January 21. In mid-January, Nepal government had indicated that it prefered India's Covishield vaccine over China's Sinovac due to logistical and quality issues.

Martial law, water cannon as junta clamps down on Myanmar protests

In first televised address since coup, Army Chief says 'poll fraud' necessitated power grab

YANGON

WITH pressure building riot police fired water cannon to disperse thousands gathered in Naypyidaw.

Martial law was declared in parts of Myanmar's second largest city Mandalay on Monday, after hundreds of thousands rallied across the country against the coup and the military issued a stern warning against further protests.

The orders cover seven townships in Mandalay, banning people from protesting or gathering in groups of more than five, and a curfew will run from 8 pm until 4 am, the general administration department said in a statement. A similar declaration has been made in a township in Ayeyarwaddy further south and announcements concerning other localities are expected to trickle out tonight. "This order is applied until further notice," one Mandalay township statement said.

"Some people... are behaving in a worrying way that can harm the safety of public and law enforcement. Such behaviours can affect stability, safety of people, law enforcement, and peaceful existence of villages and could create riots, that's why this order bans gathering, speaking in public, protest by using vehicles, rallies," the statement said.

Army chief insisted on Monday that the coup was justified by 'voter fraud', but pledged to hand back power after elections. In his first televised speech since last week's coup, General Min Aung Hlaing said the country's election commission and civilian leaders had failed to properly investigate allegations of rigging in November's election.

The junta has so far refrained from using deadly force against the demonstrations sweeping most of the country, but with pressure building riot police fired water cannon in an attempt to disperse thousands gathered in Naypyidaw.

In the face of an increasingly bold wave of defiance, state broadcaster MRTV warned that opposition to the junta was unlawful and signalled a potential crackdown.

"Action must be taken according to the law with effective steps against offences which disturb, prevent and destroy the state's stability, public safety and the rule of law," said a statement read by an announcer on the channel.

Tens of thousands of people overcame a nationwide internet blockade to rally over the weekend in the first major outpourings of opposition to the coup. Meanwhile, Britain and the European Union requested Monday that the United Nations Human Rights Council hold a special session in response to the ongoing political crisis in Myanmar. Agencies

CHRISTOPHER PLUMMER

A genteel actor loved equally by all

ADITYA SHRIKRISHNA

DEC 13, 1929 - FEB 5, 2021

THE late Christopher Plummer had seen it all. His old school Shakespearean groundwork had given him the tools for playing the principal characters who were flawed but commanded the stage with their heavy baggage and air of prominence. Iago. Hamlet. Macbeth. King Lear. It naturally gave way to characters who turned the attention towards them when they walked into a room. The ones who might not play the main part in a film but who are very much the centre of gravity. For Plummer, it stretched from The Sound of Music to Knives Out.

In one, he is the von Trapp patriarch who can go from drawing everyone into Edelweiss, to tearing a Nazi flag into tatters in the blink of an eye, and in another, he can be deceptive to a whole dysfunctional unit, having nurtured a healthy disregard for the concept of family. Plummer was one of those actors loved equally by all but never having inspired a campy adulation or irrational fandom, maybe his most identifiable Canadian trait of all.

The reality distortion field around Plummer is so strong in the Edelweiss sequence that it is hard to believe that the actor nursed a disdain for one of the biggest hits and most popular musicals of all time. In almost all his interviews, he was outspoken about his disinterest in The Sound of Music and repeating that the only memorable part of the film was working with Julie Andrews. We hear stories about actors and films like this all the time but rarely straight from the actor.

Plummer is also known for having played several real-life figures. Be it the Duke of Wellington in Waterloo or Rudyard Kipling in The Man Who Would Be King and CBS's Mike Wallace in The Insider. The Mike Wallace turn is particularly memorable and comes a full circle when considered that Plummer debuted in Sidney Lumet's Stage Struck and Michael Mann's The Insider is reminiscent of Lumet's film Network, with Plummer's Wallace caught between editorial integrity and corporate pressure. Integrity does come to mind when talking of Christopher Plummer, but he has had his share of roles of lesser men. The GIF image of Georg von Trapp splitting a Nazi flag into several pieces went viral hours after the news of actor's death broke, but in Spike Lee's Malcolm X, he plays the unrelenting racist chaplain in Malcolm's prison.

In 2021, it's almost magical and comforting that a male celebrity passes at 91—and there aren't horrible things to remember him by. Plummer was a replacement for Kevin Spacey in All the Money in the World (2017) as J Paul Getty (though director Ridley Scott claims Plummer was his original choice), and sexual misconduct allegations had surfaced against Spacey when the film was ready for release. Plummer was such a thorough professional that at almost 88, he was ready for a stressful nine-day re-filming schedule, with the studios wanting to keep the original release date.

Ironically, he played J Paul Getty, the rigid and ruthless richest man in the world at that time, who refuses to pay the ransom for his kidnapped grandson. Plummer was anything but Paul. He became the oldest actor to be nominated for an Academy Award for the role and earned Golden Globe and BAFTA nominations. He may not prefer it, but the genteel Georg von Trapp remains closest to what Christopher Plummer the man embodied.

BIDEN TO PUSH FOR REFORM AS U.S. SET TO REJOIN UNHRC

WASHINGTON

The United States said on Monday it would "re-engage" with the UN Human Rights Council, nearly three years after former president Donald Trump's administration withdrew.

President Joe Biden "has instructed the Department of State to re-engage immediately and robustly with the UN Human Rights Council", US top diplomat Anthony Blinken said in a statement issued as the council held an organisational meeting in Geneva.

Blinken said the US would initially be an observer at the council and stressed his country still regarded it as a "flawed body, in need of reform to its agenda, membership, and focus, including its disproportionate focus on Israel".

To address the council's deficiencies and ensure it lives up to its mandate, the United States must be at the table using the full weight of our diplomatic leadership," he said.

"It is our view that the best way to improve the council is to engage with it and its members in a principled fashion."

China ignores Biden's jibe

China on Monday chose to ignore US President Joe Biden's comment that his Chinese counterpart Xi Jinping lacked a democratic bone in his body but said the two countries should focus on cooperation and manage their differences.

Biden called Xi "very tough" but without "a democratic, small D, bone in his body".

Asked for his reaction to Biden's "D bone" remark, Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman Wang Wenbin evaded a direct reply. "President Xi Jinping has had many contacts with President Biden. Maintaining communication between China and the US is conducive to mutual understanding and development of bilateral ties," he said. Agencies

A TOUGH NEEDLE TO THREAD FOR TEAM TRUMP

Trump's team probably will try to remove the emotion from the case and focus on legal and practical arguments against conviction

In their first filing for the trial, his lawyers made clear that they will challenge the constitutionality of the trial now that Trump has left the White House

"The Senate is being asked to do something patently ridiculous: try a private citizen in a process that is designed to remove him from an office that he no longer holds," Trump's defence attorneys Bruce Castor, David Schoen and Michael T van der Veen wrote on Monday

TURNING TO THE 14TH AMENDMENT

If Trump is acquitted, experts say Congress could turn to the 14th Amendment to US Constitution that is aimed at preventing people from holding federal office if they are deemed to have "engaged in insurrection or rebellion against" the Constitution

If a majority vote of both houses agree that Trump engaged in an act of "insurrection or rebellion," then he would be barred from running for the White House again. Only a two-thirds vote of each chamber of Congress in the future could undo that result

FEW IN AMERICA THINK DEMOCRACY IS WORKING WELL

16% of Americans say democracy is working well, according to an AP-NORC poll of 1,055 adults conducted between January 28 and February 1

LONG SHOT FOR DEMOCRATS

It will take a two-thirds vote of the 100-member Senate to convict Trump of the impeachment charge, which is "incitement of insurrection." If all 50 Democrats voted to convict him, 17 Republicans would have to join them to reach that threshold

30 Govt assets identified for monetisation

Group of Secretaries discussed a few Delhi Metro routes, Powergrid Corporation assets, and gas pipelines at meet

ANURADHA SHUKLA @ New Delhi

TAKING forward the agenda of divestment, a core group of secretaries have shortlisted about 30 projects and assets for monetisation, as announced by finance minister Nirmala Sitharaman in her budget speech.

According to sources, the core group discussed a host of projects that could be monetised on a priority basis, including certain routes of the Delhi Metro, power transmission assets of Powergrid worth ₹10,000 crore, gas pipeline assets of GAIL worth ₹10,000 crore and some ports. The meeting also discussed aggressive privatisation of stations and Railway routes, a few public spaces and sports stadiums including Jawaharlal Nehru Stadium.

"The meeting has shortlisted about 30 projects which can be monetized. Niti Aayog is already tasked to come up with the detailed list and the valuation of these projects. The Aayog will consult independent agencies, if required, and give the detailed valuation of each asset," a senior finance ministry official told TNIE.

The projects which are expected to be rewarded within the next six months include Konkan Railways, Kolkata Metro, Mumbai CSMT Station, and New Delhi Station. Railways is already working with Aayog to come up with RFQs for 40 more stations for their redevelopment under the PPP model. The aviation ministry, which has shortlisted Tiruchirappalli, Amritsar, Varanasi, Bhubaneswar, Raipur, and Indore airports, is also planning to give 12 more to private players for operations in FY22.

The meeting also discussed the asset monetisation of state-based public sector enterprises. NITI Aayog has already asked the respective ministries to send the list of assets under their aegis. Sources added that the Aayog is expected to give the first list before March 31 to the finance ministry with a copy to the PMO.

Union Budget 2021 has pegged the divestment target for FY22 at ₹1.75 lakh crore and the Centre has already initiated the process of strategic sale of several firms, has major IPOs planned and said it will sell two public sector banks and one general insurance company.

Delhi HC rules on FRL petition

The fresh order came in response to an appeal filed by FRL against last week's Delhi High Court ruling asking it to maintain a status quo on its RIL deal

Status quo order on RIL-Future agreement stayed

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Bengaluru

THE ongoing tussle between the two retail giants Amazon and Future witnessed a new turn of events on Monday after the Delhi High Court lifted the status-quo on the $3.4 billion (₹24,713 crore) deal with Reliance Industries Limited (RIL) for Future Retail. The court, while providing interim relief to Kishore Biyani's Future Group, also did not accede to Amazon's request to keep the order in abeyance for a week so that the e-tailer could explore alternatives.

The fresh order came in response to an appeal filed by FRL against last week's single judge Delhi High Court ruling which asked the debt-ridden firm to maintain a status quo on its deal with RIL.

This had effectively stalled FRL's attempts to sell its logistics, retail, warehousing arms to Mukesh Ambani's firm. India's market regulator Securities Exchange Board of India(SEBI) and competition watchdog Competition Commission of India (CCI) have already approved the deal. SEBI had also directed FRL to approach the National Company Law Tribunal and disclose the contentions by Amazon with respect to the deal.

Amazon, on the other hand, is seeking enforceability of Singapore's emergency arbitration award in India stating that the same can be implemented under Section 17 of the Arbitration Act, which the Delhi HC upheld last week. However, on Monday, the e-tailer received a fresh jolt after a two- member bench said that the court cannot stop the regulators. Amazon earlier told the court that Kishore Biyani had taken ₹500 crore from the e-tailer and assured it that its consent will be taken if FRL enters into any share holding agreement with the companies.

It also contended that in 2019, Amazon bought a 49 per cent stake in Future Coupons, a promoter firm of FRL with conditions that FRL will not sell its stakes to rival firms.

Air passenger traffic slows down in Jan

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

DOMESTIC passenger traffic growth slowed down in January 2021, registering sequential growth (over December 2020) of just 3.5 per cent to 76 lakh passengers. In December 2020, the same had grown by 12 per cent (over November 2020) to 71 lakh passengers. On a year-on-year basis, domestic passenger traffic was down by 41 per cent in January 2021.

According to Kinjal Shah, Vice President, at ICRA Ratings, "The number of flights departing has also gradually increased from 416 on Day 1 to 2,294 on Day 240 (January 18, 2021). For January 2021, the average daily departures were 2,190, significantly lower than the average daily departures of 3,080 in January 2020, though better than 2,048 in December 2020. The average number of passengers per flight during January 2021 was 111, against an average of 134 passengers per flight in January 2020. Thus, it is expected that the domestic aviation industry operated at a passenger load factor (PLF) of 72 per cent in January 2021, against 86.0 per cent in January 2020, that too on a low capacity. The PLF for January 2021 was lower than the 74 per cent in December 2020, due to the increase in capacity deployment by 7 per cent."

The capacity deployment in January 2021 was recorded at 71 per cent (vis-a-vis January 2020), a significant increase over the 67 per cent capacity deployed in December 2020.

RBI to purchase up to ₹20,000 cr Govt bonds via open market this Wednesday

SESA SEN @ New Delhi

THE Reserve Bank of India (RBI) will purchase up to ₹20,000 crore worth of government bonds via open market operations (OMO) on Wednesday, it said in a release.

The move is aimed at keeping yields in check so that the government borrowing plan goes through in a non-disruptive manner and to widen liquidity in the system. After the announcement, the 10-year bond yield eased to 6.034 per cent compared to the previous close of 6.071 per cent. "The Reserve Bank stands committed to ensure availability of ample liquidity in the system in order to foster congenial financial conditions.On a review of current liquidity and financial conditions, the RBI has decided to conduct purchase of government securities under OMO for an aggregate amount of ₹20,000 crore on February 10, 2021," it said. It also later notified that it would conduct a special auction to sell the same bonds it refused to sell last Friday due to higher yields demanded by the market. The RBI will be selling ₹11,000 crore each of 10-year and 5 year bonds on Thursday. The government will have the option to retail additional subscriptions up to ₹2,000 crore against each of the bonds. On Friday again, the RBI will be auctioning ₹26,000 crore of bonds as per the prior plan.

Despite the pledge from RBI Governor Shaktikanta Das to pursue an "orderly completion of the borrowing programme", analysts say this year will be different from pandemic-hit 2020 and maintaining high levels of liquidity may no longer be easily possible. "Economic recovery is gaining momentum. That implies a pick-up in credit growth. Banks will now have more options than the government to lend to, which could put some pressure on G-sec yields," said Crisil Research.

In all, supply pressures will have a bearing on the 10-year G-sec yield once the Reserve Bank of India starts unwinding its ultra-accommodative monetary policy stance. —Crisil Research

Formula One world champion Lewis Hamilton will stay with Mercedes for a ninth season after signing a one-year deal, the team said on Monday. Seeking to climb Mt Everest

Less than a month after scaling Gabbatoir, India need record run-chase of 420 on Day 5

VENKATA KRISHNA B @Chennai

Spinner R Ashwin (centre) claimed six wickets to put India back in hunt | SPORTZPICS

WILL England get India's remaining nine wickets? Or have they given themselves less time to bowl out the hosts after batting 48.3 overs for 178 in the second innings? Can India chase the remaining 381 runs (target 420) to complete the highest-ever successful run chase? Will the MA Chidambaram pitch deteriorate further or hold up? These are the questions that need answers as the first Test between India and England is set for an exciting Day 5 finish.

After three, five and eight wickets fell on the first three days, Day 4 witnessed 15 wickets. But the pitch had hardly any role in those dismissals. Pacers and spinners have picked wickets with the new ball, but once it passes the 30-over mark, it still remains a toil for the bowlers. England, who have maintained through the Test that they expect the pitch to break-up, carried on batting in the second innings raising plenty of eyebrows. Especially when Jos Buttler and Dom Bess played defensively (scored only 48 off their last 18 overs). It suggested two things: a) they remain sceptical of how the pitch will behave on the last day and b) if the pitch doesn't break-up, they see the target as not beyond this Indian batting line-up which recently chased 328 at the Gabba.

"It is the first game of the series. While you want to make a strong start, you don't want to give India a chance to win," England bowling coach Jon Lewis said on his team's approach. "I don't think it's a straightforward pitch where you can be reckless to score. But, we were comfortable with the amount of overs we wanted to bowl on Monday. The pitch is good but tricky. Accelerating against India in India isn't always straightforward. We are happy with where we are at."

If one goes by the dismissal of Rohit Sharma, where Jack Leach got one to grip and turn, England will believe they are in with a definite chance of taking 1-0 lead on Tuesday. That they also have Dom Bess, who picked four wickets in the first innings and Jofra Archer who continues to get good lift, gives them a chance. When you add in the wily James Anderson and Ben Stokes, they are better-placed to win.

Thanks to the footmarks, the odd ball not only takes sharp turn, it also finds good bounce which will bring Leach and Bess into play. But then again, there is a caveat. All this has been difficult while bowling with the old ball, which means the first hour of the morning session could determine the way the Test is heading. So far, 22 out of 31 wickets have fallen with the new ball (30 overs). It suggests bowlers have had to toil for long periods with the older ball.

Which again makes you question if England will get enough overs to have a crack with the second new ball, if the Test goes the distance. Despite being in the driver's seat, the defensive approach on Day 4 gave an indication that England expect India not to shut shop. And the mood in the camp doesn't suggest that they will bat for a draw either. While chasing 381 on the final day can be daunting, India are deriving confidence from what they achieved Down Under. If the experienced trio of Cheteshwar Pujara, Virat Kohli and Ajinkya Rahane can hang around, India will bank on the likes of Shubman Gill, Rishabh Pant and Washington Sundar to keep the tempo flowing.

A Test that appeared to be on snooze mode, has come to life when it matters the most.

300

Ishant Sharma became the sixth Indian and third pacer from the country to take 300 wickets in Tests.

28 R Ashwin picked up his 28th five-wicket haul on Monday.

1 Ashwin is the first spinner in over 100 years to take a wicket off the first ball of an innings.

113 Since 2015, Ishant has taken 113 wickets in 37 Tests.

NRAI chief looking to revoke ban

ENS/AGENCIES @Chennai

SOME of the shooters in the country including Tokyo Olympics quota holder Yashaswini Singh Deswal had been barred from the next national championships for taking part in unauthorised competitions. Now, it looks like there will be a reprieve for those facing the ban with National Rifle Association of India (NRAI) president Raninder Singh looking to persuade the members of general body, scheduled to meet next month, to 'stay the decision'.

"It has been our endeavour to act in the best interests of our sport and our shooters. As such, no one is as pained as us when at times severe action is needed to be taken on anyone belonging to the shooting fraternity...," Singh said.

"I received several requests. I've decided to refer the decision to the general body, scheduled to meet next month, and persuade them to not implement the decision," he added.

Oz Open: Heavyweights breeze into 2nd round

AFP @ Melbourne

NOVAK Djokovic served a reminder of why he's the greatest Australian Open champion in history as he demolished France's Jeremy Chardy in straight sets in round one on Monday. The eight-time winner's 6-3, 6-1, 6-2 win showed that normal service had resumed at Rod Laver Arena after the year's first Grand Slam was delayed three weeks over the coronavirus.

Serena Williams, Naomi Osaka and Simona Halep also enjoyed convincing wins as the tournament finally got underway in front of limited crowds after a troubled build-up.

Form and fitness are highly unpredictable at the Australian Open after the coronavirus wiped out five months of last season and badly disrupted preparations for the first Grand Slam of 2021. But Djokovic left little doubt about his readiness to pursue a record-extending ninth title in Melbourne, breaking in the first game and completing the win in 91 minutes.

After the tortuous build-up, Osaka struck the first serve on the centre court against Russia's Anastasia Pavlyuchenkova and strode just 68 minutes later as a 6-1, 6-2 winner.

South Korea's capital says it will give pet dogs and cats free coronavirus tests if they come into contact with infected humans and show symptoms. Seoul official Park Yoo-mi told a briefing that pets found infected with the virus must be quarantined at their homes or a city-run facility for 14 days. The central government last week released guidelines on virus tests on pets.

THE UPSIDE 05 of the vaccines that have publicly published their results have proven that they can reduce Covid-19 deaths to zero. The vaccine shots have also dramatically reduced hospitsalisations

THE DOWNSIDE 75% of vaccine shots administered have been in just 10 wealthy countries, the chief of WHO said recently. Nearly 130 countries, with 2.5 bn people, are yet to administer a single dose

EXFILE • HEALTH

TRACKING THE WORLD'S VACCINE ROLLOUT

Last week, the number of vaccine shots administered surpassed the total number of confirmed coronavirus cases in the world. The milestone — arriving just a year into the Covid-19 pandemic — has been an uneven achievement, however, with poorer nations unable to secure and distribute shots as quickly as rich ones. We take a look at the experiences of select countries in their campaigns to vaccinate a critical mass of the population

RUSSIA

Vaccine rollout outside Moscow has been very slow, with people across the country not trusting the government enough to take the vaccine. With no health workers turning up for a shot, clinics are calling healthy civilians to be jabbed

In fact, reports indicate that Argentina, which has received a batch of Russia's indigenous Sputnik V vaccine, has vaccinated more people than all of Russia beyond Moscow

CHINA

Unlike Western nations, China began vaccinating people aged 18 to 59 first, and in January expanded the campaign to include older people. China has tried to fight the pandemic primarily with stringent testing and rules

The country's vaccine makers have acknowledged that the domestic vaccine doses are not adequate to inoculate 1.4 billion people; Chinese firm BioKangtai has constructed a plant to make 400 million doses of the Oxford/Astrazeneca vaccine this year

S KOREA

The country opted for a wait-and-see approach with immunisation, with its vaccination scheduled to begin only this month. Health authorities are watching other nations' inoculation campaigns for any complications and are planning to change their vaccine strategy accordingly. Doses for 56 million people have been secured, with 20 million more people's worth of shots in the pipeline (the country has a population of only 52 million). To reassure the public, S Korea's president has promised that the government would bear responsible for vaccine complications and compensate people for the same, reported Max Kim, a Seoul-based journalist, in Foreign Policy magazine

THAILAND

Most of the vaccines that the country has ordered are to be produced by Siam Bioscience, a private Thai company owned by King Maha Vajiralongkorn. Siam Bioscience is contracted to produce 200 million doses of the Oxford/AstraZeneca vaccine, of which only 26 million are allocated for Thailand. Thanathorn Juangroongruangkit, a billionaire politician who is popular among progressives in the country, was charged with defaming Thailand's monarchy after he said the government's vaccine procurement was late and inadequate. He also said that Siam Bioscience didn't have any experience at all in manufacturing vaccines

HIGHER PRICES

In South Africa, the government reluctantly agreed to pay a higher price per shot than Europe or North America, so that South Africans can get doses of the AstraZeneca vaccine quickly

CUBA'S R&D SURPRISE

Cuba, the only Latina American country that is developing Covid-19 vacines, expects to deliver a million doses of its Soberana 02 vaccine candidate by late April, Xinhua reported. The country is working four experimental vaccines and expects to produce 100 million doses of Soberana 02 this year

SIKHS SERVE SHOTS

In Dubai, a Sikh temple is helping out by having its medical administer 5,000 shots of Sinopharm's vaccine to drivers, grocery store clerks, doctors — who may otherwise find it tough to get vaccinated

POORER COUNTRIES FED UP WITH WAITING

Countries such as Serbia, Bangladesh and Mexico recently began vaccinating citizens through donations or commercial deals — an approach that could leave even fewer doses for Covax programme, as since rich countries have already snapped up the majority of 2021's supply

Led by the WHO, CEPI and a vaccine alliance called Gavi, Covax was created to distribute Covid-19 vaccines fairly. Countries can join either to buy vaccines or to get donated shots

Although Serbia paid 4 million euros to Covax last year, it has not yet received any shots and last month began its inoculation campaign with vaccines from Pfizer, China's Sinopharm and Russia, The AP reported

It's as if they intend to vaccinate all their cats and dogs

Serbian President Aleksandar Vucic, who was quoted as saying that the country was forced to cut its own deals. He criticised nations that bought more doses than they needed, The Associated Press reported

S Africa seeks new vax plan as Astra rollout is halted

Nation's inoculation strategy being watched globally because of new virulent virus strain

MEDICINE

JOHANNESBURG: South Africa is considering giving a Covid-19 vaccine that is still in the testing phase to health workers, after suspending the rollout of another shot that preliminary data indicated is not effective at preventing mild to moderate illness from the variant dominant in the country.

The country is scrambling to come up with a new vaccination strategy after it halted use of the AstraZeneca vaccine — which is cheaper and easier to handle than others and which many had hoped would be crucial to combatting the pandemic in developing countries. Among the possibilities being considered: mixing the AstraZeneca vaccine with another one and giving Johnson & Johnson's single-dose vaccine, which has not yet been authorized for use anywhere, to 100,000 health care workers while monitoring its efficacy against the variant.

South Africa's inoculation strategy is being watched globally because the variant first detected and now dominant here is spreading in more than 30 countries. Officials say this form of the virus is more contagious, and evidence is emerging that it may be more virulent; recent studies have also shown it can infect people who have survived the original form of the virus.

After a second surge, cases and deaths in South Africa have begun to fall recently, but it is still battling one of Africa's most severe outbreaks, with more than 46,000 deaths. It is worried that another spike will come in May or June, when the Southern Hemisphere country heads into its winter.

So far, early results from trials of the Johnson & Johnson vaccine showed it offers less protection against the variant than the original disease but is still highly effective at preventing severe and fatal cases, according to Dr. Glenda Gray, director of the South Africa Medical Research Council, who led the South African part of the global trial. A Novavax vaccine candidate has shown similar results. "We can't wait. We already have good local data," Gray said, stressing that clinical trials show that it is safe. She added that South Africa is making urgent plans to "roll it out and evaluate it in the field."

"Our scientists must get together and quickly figure out what approach we're going to use," Health Minister Zweli Mhkize said Sunday night, announcing the suspension of the AstraZeneca vaccine, which is the only one available in South Africa.

FACT OF THE MATTER

US' remote learning future

EDUCATION

After seeing two academic years thrown off course by the pandemic, school leaders around the US are planning for the possibility of more distance learning next fall at the start of yet another school year. "We have no illusions that COVID will be eradicated by the time the start of the school year comes up," said William "Chip" Sudderth III, a spokesperson for Durham, North Carolina schools, whose students have been out of school buildings since March. President Joe Biden has made reopening schools a top priority, but administrators say there is much to consider as new strains of the coronavirus appear and teachers wait their turn for vaccinations. Parents are divided over sending kids to school.

Nod for Astra's diabetes drug

MEDICINE

Pharmaceutical company AstraZeneca India on Monday announced that it has received marketing authorisation for its anti-diabetic drug -- dapagliflozin -- in India for the treatment of patients of chronic kidney disease (CKD) up to third stage. This permission paves the way for the launch of Dapagliflozin Tablets 10mg into a new disease area in India. Detailed results from Phase III DAPA-CKD trial showed that AstraZeneca's dapagliflozin on top of standard of care reduced the composite measure of worsening of renal function or risk of cardiovascular or renal death by 39% compared to placebo in patients with CKD Stages 2-4 and elevated urinary albumin excretion, as per a press release.

Experimental drug significantly speeds up Covid recovery

RESEARCH

TORONTO: Scientists have found that an experimental antiviral drug can significantly speed up recovery in COVID-19 patients who do not need hospitalisation, an advance that may lead to better interventions to treat those infected with the novel coronavirus.

The study, published in the journal Lancet Respiratory Medicine, noted that patients who received a single injection of the drug peginterferon-lambda were over four times more likely to have cleared the infection within seven days compared to a group treated with placebo.

This treatment has large therapeutic potential, especially at this moment as we see aggressive variants of the virus spreading around the globe which are less sensitive to both vaccines and treatment with antibodies

Jordan Feld, a co-author in the study

According to the researchers, people who were treated with the drug cleared the virus quickly with the effect being most pronounced in those with the highest viral levels.

"We also saw a trend towards quicker improvement of respiratory symptoms in the treatment group," explained Jordan Feld, who is from the Toronto Centre for Liver Disease in Canada.

Patients with higher viral levels were much more likely to clear the infection following treatment with the drug than those who received the placebo -- 79 per cent in the treatment arm compared to 38 per cent in the placebo group.

The researchers added that the virus levels decreased quickly in everyone in the treatment group.

They explained that rapid clearance of the virus has several benefits, particularly in those with high viral levels, as such cases are associated with more severe disease and a higher risk of transmission to others.

Among the 60 patients followed in the study, the researchers said five went to emergency rooms with deteriorating respiratory symptoms.

'2,000-tumour man' jailed for donor scam

HEALTH

MADRID: A Spaniard known as "the man with 2,000 tumours" who lied about having terminal cancer was handed a two-year jail term for scamming donations from thousands, including celebrities.

Paco Sanz, 50, appeared regularly on TV and social media between 2010 and 2017, claiming to have 2,000 tumours as a result of Cowden syndrome.

Saying he had only months to live, he appealed for donations via his web page, through text messages and even a charity gala. Although he did suffer from the syndrome, all his tumours were benign and posed no threat to his life.

Prosecutors say the former security guard collected just under 265,000 euros before being arrested in March 2017 in the eastern Valencia region.

Among those who sent him money were popular television presenter Jorge Javier Vazquez and Spanish footballer Alvaro Negredo.

Prosecutors accused Sanz of "taking advantage of his illness" to "obtain illegal funding". They said he presented the disease as being "much more serious than it really was" and of falsely claiming he could only be saved if he got experimental treatment in the US. In reality, he travelled to the US to take part in a free clinical trial and "all his costs were covered" by the firm running it.

SILENT MAJORITY

TikTok rival banks on unusual demographic of 'ordinary' Chinese villagers

TECHNOLOGY

BEIJING: On Lu Kaigang's feed, sheets of tarp are transformed into haute couture as China's mountainous backdrop becomes his catwalk, a 22-year-old villager sashaying to fame via a video-sharing app for the everyman -- Kuaishou.

Lu is one of hundreds of millions of users uploading short clips to the app, which propelled its parent company to a $5.4 billion initial public offering last week.

But while its competitor Douyin -- the Chinese version of TikTok – is famed for trendy and typically urban influencers, Kuaishou reaches a different demographic, lassoing in migrant workers and rural Chinese. Lu uses his colourful video stream to show how everyday materials can be turned into sophisticated clothing.

That traction with a poorer but connected mass market known as "tu wei" in Chinese -- meaning "earthy" -- resonated on the Hong Kong stock exchange. Shares in Kuaishou Technology, whose name means "quick hands", almost tripled on debut last Friday, bringing the company's value to $159 billion.

On one channel, a user showcases "the daily life of an uncle born in the 80s" through simple homecooked food. Another demonstrates survival skills on a "deserted island", with the star making homespun toothpaste from nearby ingredients like cacti.

Kuaishou says it made a conscious decision to channel viewers to less famous content creators.

In a speech last year, vice-president Yu Jingzhong said 70 percent of Kuaishou's traffic was allocated to "ordinary people". Yu said in the first nine months of 2019, more than 19 million people earned income through Kuaishou, many of them from poverty-stricken counties.

Kuaishou emerged around a decade ago, when investor Fisher Zhang met the company's founder Cheng Yixiao -- a former software engineer and developer at Hewlett-Packard.

As the Kuaishou app grew, so did ways to monetise its content. Some users' pages contain in-app stores where users can buy everything from beauty products to cooking items -- with Kuaishou taking a cut.

But a majority of the company's revenues come from livestreaming, where viewers can buy virtual gifts for streamers during their shows -- making up 62% of total revenue in the first nine months of 2020 for the group, which takes a percentage.

The platform's business model, however, differs from that of TikTok and others, as it does not rely on direct advertising but on tipping. This makes it "fundamentally a peer-to-peer payment system", said Alex Capri, a research fellow at Hinrich Foundation.

As Beijing pays closer attention to the tech sector, Kuaishou is also wading into a global environment fraught with tensions. Experts say Kuaishou may have to navigate similar issues with its overseas app Zynn, which is looking to take on TikTok.

'IT'S NOT OVER BEFORE IT'S OVER'

As he completes 25 years in the film industry, Kichcha Sudeep talks to CE about his journey, and what makes him tick

A SHARADHAA

THE images of Kichcha Sudeep's Vikrant Rona displayed on Burj Khalifa in Dubai sparked a frenzy on social media recently, but the Sandalwood star does not consider the event the best moment of his life. The one memory, on the other hand, that he says will never get erased from his mind is the morning show of Huchcha at Menaka theatre. "Even the event at Burj Khalifa cannot replace that," says Sudeep, who has completed 25 years in the film industry.

He considers 2020 to be the best year for himself. "The Covid time was difficult, but it helped me stay at home. I got to talk to the plants and other living things I came by. I saw the world remain indoors, irrespective of people's background. The year took us close to our lives. Even if 20 per cent of people across the globe have changed during this time, it will be a better place to live in," says Sudeep, adding that he made use of the time to think, write, play antakshari, practise mimicry, spend time with his family, and feel relaxed. "Of course, we saw people suffering, and from our end, we tried to do our best to lend a helping hand," he says.

Sudeep is one of the first few Kannada stars who have been successful across India in the 21st century. Was it a part of his plan when he took up Phoonk? "According to me, getting known pan-India is just an intention. If the story is capable of reaching every place, and if it works out logistically, anybody can achieve that. Today, I think content flows. Also, the present generation has a different way of telling a story. They are coming up with a different presentation, and if the story told by them is universal, then it immediately becomes a pan-India film," he says.

Ask him about what led him to foray into direction, and he recalls, "Back in 2005, I was at the lowest phase of my life. That's when I decided to take up direction, and I picked up Shanthi Nivasa. At that time, I didn't want to prove anything, and it was only an option I explored."

Now, it looks like his fans need to wait for his next directorial. "Each time I decide to make a directorial announcement, I learn that a lot of filmmakers are writing stories for me, and I feel happy about it. I want to be a part of their living," Sudeep says, adding, "Direction will happen, but it will take a little more time."

With all his experience in front of him, what advice does he think a younger Sudeep would have benefitted from? "Before Sparsha, I should not have shaved my moustache and beard. For Eega, there would be no advice at all. I just did what my heart said, and that has brought me till here," says the actor, director, and producer.

He continues to beam with hope and energy about what lies ahead. "So long as the path we take is good and our small achievements are discussed, nothing else matters. Some are not able to reach anywhere in a short span of time. But it is not over before it is over," stresses Sudeep.

His long innings have also helped him learn a few things about his own working style. "If somebody encourages me, I do well," he says. "If somebody irritates me, I do very well. And if I am provoked, I do damn well."

'I WILL NEVER SAY NO TO A BIOPIC'

A SHARADHAA

Rashmika steps into multilingual territory with Kannada-Telugu-Tamil trilingual Pogaru that's set for release on Feb. 19. This will be followed by her Tamil debut in Karthi's Sultan (April 2), and the Telugu film, Pushpa, opposite Allu Arjun (August 13). This is not all. The actor is also shooting for her Bollywood debut, Mission Majnu, starring Siddharth Malhotra, and has signed another Telugu film, Aadaalloo Meeku Johaarlu. In this interview, she evinces excitement about her upcoming film, Pogaru, and also talks about the challenges of working across languages...

The pan-India dream

"I have never thought of language as being a barrier for my work. I truly believe this, and I am glad to be working across languages. I think it is a wonderful thing for an actor like myself to be able to establish myself across industries."

The Covid factor

"Pogaru is my first film to get released after the Covid relaxations have been implemented and 100 per cent occupancy allowed in theatres. Although I am excited, it is also important to remember that it is still a tricky situation.

SAFETY NET

Online schooling doesn't have to come at the cost of cyber security. On Safer Internet Day, CE speaks to experts who suggest ways in which children can have a harmless online presence

SIMRAN AHUJA

Educational institutions may be opening up but for many, schools are still synonymous with screen time. While it has helped keep youngsters safe from the virus, it has exposed them to other threats. According to Gagan Jain, CEO of internet safety company Cybersafe Bangalore, students are now more vulnerable. "In the past few months we've heard of so many scenarios – either strangers enter Zoom classes and act inappropriately or third parties have been able to access people's system, turning on their webcam, mic, etc," explains Jain, who adds that with parents and children sharing devices, banking credentials could also get compromised if kids are not careful.

Earlier, while parents could limit a child's usage of devices, the same is impossible now. Jain suggests that if parents are giving their laptops to children, it is best to create a different user profile for them. "So even if a child accidentally falls prey to spyware or virus, this profile won't contain sensitive information," suggests Jain, adding that while no class is on, it is best to place a sticker on the webcam. Children must also verify emails from all recipients and never opt for online payments. "We have many retail sites other than the usual Flipkart and Amazon. But sometimes, a hacker can tweak a company payment QR code to route it to his own QR code. It may look authentic but the money will go elsewhere," he says.

While there are platforms that allow a parent to track online activity, Dr Manoj Kumar Sharma believes such measures should be consensual. "If a child feels like there's no trust, he may lash out," says the professor of clinical psychology, who is also the coordinator of Shut (Service for Healthy Use of Technology) Clinic at NIMHANS. He continues, "Communicate better so that kids can build their internal locus of control."

Agrees Dr Ali Khwaja, who has in the past conducted workshops on cyber safety for children. Khwaja, who is also the founder and chairman of Banjara Academy, believes policing is never the answer. "Kids with low self-esteem often tread from curiosity to addiction and fall prey to watching pornography or become victims of cyber bullying," he explains. Better communication can go a long way. "Parents need to create a platform where children can discuss anything. They need to practise being non-judgemental. This way, the child knows they can trust the adult and not be reprimanded," he says.

DO

- Maintain up-to-date anti-virus software and change the log-in password frequently if you are attending online classes, using social networking sites, and research work. Teach your child to verify the address an email comes from.
- Secure your wi-fi network with a strong password
- Take note of fake profiles and report them to the law agencies at the right time
- Pay attention to your child's behaviour, sleeping patterns, etc. If anything seems amiss, discuss the matter with your child

DON'T

- Share and download illegal content, like movies, games, leaked question papers, etc.
- Give away too much personal data to ensure you maintain online privacy
- Engage with strangers, especially on social media sites
- Allow children to make online purchases without consulting a parent. And as far as possible, opt for Cash on Delivery

> Social engineering which includes phishing, OTP scams, are rampant today. Especially during the Covid 19 period, the vaccination-related scams and job scams are very active. Besides, if one takes a selfie image with mobile there are 17 kinds of attributions to it like location coordinates, image details, and phone details, which are enough to carry out nefarious activities
>

> There could be emails announcing that you've won large sums of money and asking you to make payments to receive said "winnings". Or there could be websites offering something for a low price, but never explaining what it is exactly. Be sure to educate your children on all telltale signs

JAHNAVI R

In the digital world, there is no face-to-face interaction unless you choose to have one, and yet it enables you to connect with anyone worldover. In the real world, there are cheats who have conned millions of their money on the pretext of a job prospect or an investment with high returns. The same is being replicated online. OTP fraud, cyber bullying, child pornography are some of the malicious activities that match the rate of real-world crimes. The cybercrime police is trying to keep pace but have a long way to go before being able to help everyone who has been a victim of cyber crime. Therefore, it is in our best interest to be careful and mindful when using the internet. Here are some ways to stay safe online:

- Do not trust anyone online, especially those who contact you for the first time. Never believe incoming e-mails or calls to be official unless you are sure that they are originating from a pre-validated domain or telephone number. Verify email addresses and telephone numbers from the original source. Check the spelling of the email IDs.
- Double check weblinks before clicking them. The domain of the website should be correct in spelling and also the top-level domain should be correct. Top-level domain is the last part of the website address (like .com, .org, .net, etc.). Also ensure that the website starts with "https://".
- Authenticate the e-mail address to which you are replying. Check that the domain part of the e-mail address matches that of the business you are communicating with. The domain part is the one that comes after the "@" symbol in the e-mail address.
- Enable privacy settings on your social media accounts. Do not publish private content online. Unless really necessary, keep the default settings of your privacy to only be shared with your known contacts. Disable public sharing.
- Create a separate profile for your child's online activities. Most websites do not permit accounts to be created for children. This is a sign that children are likely to be exposed to content that is not suitable for them.
- Monitor your child's online activities and discuss cyber privacy with them. Both Windows and MacOS allow for monitored profiles to be created. Similarly, we can create separate profiles in the Chrome browser which is dedicated for child use. This will also prevent adult-oriented content being exposed to them.
- Read privacy and security policies of the websites that you use. Agree to terms of service only if you are comfortable with them. Avoid using websites and app services like cabs, shopping, games, news, food, knowledge sharing, that do not respect your privacy or display poor security practices. Read the section of the policy which talks about 'What we collect' and 'What do we do with your data.' Ensure that the organisation collects only the data that is necessary for providing their services and it does not share its customers' data with other companies like marketers and resellers.
- If you run a company, ensure you implement a reasonable amount of security practices to prevent security breaches. Enforce the basics of security practices such as access control, vulnerability management, incident management and compliance management. Implement important security technologies such as network firewall, antivirus, and file integrity monitoring system. Consider becoming compliant with information security standards such as ISO 27001, PCI DSS.

FIT BIT

ARDHA PADMA HALASANA

(HALF LOTUS PLOUGH POSE)

In Sanskrit, Ardha means 'half', Padma means 'lotus', hala means 'plough' and asana means 'pose'. It strengthens the back and abdominal muscles, activates the intestinal peristalsis, improves digestion and removes constipation. It facilitates the breakdown of fats by activating the liver and gallbladder and stretches the pelvic region. Ardha Halasana is a preparatory step towards 'Halasana'. It is considered a warm-up yoga pose to prepare the body for more intense yoga poses.

STEPS

- Sit with the legs outstretched and the feet together.
- Now, bend the left leg and place the right foot on top of the left thigh, then with the help of the hands lean back and lie on the back.
- Then lift up into Sarvangasana (shoulder stand Pose) supporting the back with the hands.
- Breathing should be normal and move into Halasana lowering the left leg behind the head until the toes touch the floor.
- Make sure that the right foot remains on the left thigh. Bring the arms above the head and hold the toes of the left foot with both hands.
- Now, the left leg remains straight.
- Breathe in normally and hold the position.
- Bring the hands to support the back and lift into Sarvangasana.
- Exhaling, roll the back down, vertebra by vertebra and return to the starting position.
- You can practise this exercise with the other leg too.

BENEFITS

- This asana strengthens the endocrine and nervous system.
- It improves blood circulation, stimulates the digestive fire and regulates body weight.
- It helps to stretch the muscles of the back, hips and legs.
- It also promotes flexibility of the spine and heightens one's sense of wellbeing.
- This pose is especially recommended for learning to sit in lotus posture.
- The asana influences the Vishuddha (Throat) and Manipura (Solar Plexus) Chakras.

LIMITATIONS

- People with high blood pressure, heart ailments, slipped disc, and knee and hip problems should avoid this.
- Don't practise this pose if you have hernia, sciatica or other back or neck ailments. Pregnant women must avoid this asana.
- Relax for a short time in Anandasana (relaxation pose) and then perform Matsyasana (fish pose) as a counter pose.

Disagreement? Let's try to work it out

OPEN SPACE
Nirad Mudur
Senior Assistant Editor
niradmudur@newindianexpress.com

Do you agree?" This seemingly innocent question is deceptively dangerous, because if the answer is in the negative, battle-lines are drawn. The seriousness of it then depends on the magnitude of the issue at hand on which agreement or disagreement happens.

If a friend you are out with likes chocolate ice cream, and you don't, the disagreement still concludes on a harmless note. Disagreements are of varying degrees, the seriousness of which inevitably depends on what is being disagreed upon. A 'yes' is always appreciated because there is no cause for friction of ideas; a 'no' can be a matchstick lit in a gas-filled chamber.

In school, as a 12-year-old, I remember the day when my friend was beaten up by bullies in our class. He was not in agreement with the consensual decision of contributing money to buy a birthday gift for our teacher. My friend, a creative mind, had made an artistic piece himself to present it to our teacher. He felt that since he had done it, there was no need to pay separately. He had made a beautiful cardboard boat with masts and all, and a card attached to it, saying: "Dear teacher, may you live a long and a happy life, guiding us through our life which is like this boat without a rudder!"

The bullies, fearing that others in the class may follow in his footsteps and not pay up, ganged up on my poor friend. The rest (including me) stood in silent agreement with them for fear of being targeted themselves by the hulks of the class.

Guess what? After beating him up, they even smeared ink on his face and uniform (familiar act, right?).

I felt guilty for not stepping in to help my friend, but fear had got the better of me. Later, when I mustered some courage to speak to him through my guilt, I asked him, "Weren't you afraid of them?"

He replied: "I was. But I was more afraid that my boat would go waste. I had made it for her, and from all of us."

Bloodied, ink-smeared and all, but not an ounce humiliated, my gritty friend presented the gift to our teacher as she stepped into our classroom. Her smile turned into an expression of shock at the sight of his face smeared with ink mixed with blood pouring out from a deep cut on his left brow, and swollen cheeks from the punches by the cowards.

Some incidents in life remain in the crevices of the brain as memories and get revived when similar incidents take place around you.

Jonathan Haidt, an American social psychologist and professor of ethical leadership at New York University's Stern School of Business, and author, opens the introduction in his book, The Righteous Mind: Why Good People Are Divided By Politics And Religion, with a reference to a 1991 incident in the USA. Rodney King, a black man, was almost beaten to death by four Los Angeles police officers. The incident was videotaped. The entire country watched it on news channels. But the next year, when the jury failed to convict the four police officers despite the evidence presented, Los Angeles erupted in six days of bloody riots, claiming 53 lives.

On May 1, 1992, King was moved to make an appeal to the people for peace after a horrific case of violence targeting a white truck driver. His appeal was: "Please, we can all get along here. We all can get along. I mean, we're stuck here for a while. Let's try to work it out."

IN TOON WITH THE TIMES

Polish illustrator and satirical cartoonist, Izabela Kowalska-Wieczorek, whose work is currently on display in the city, talks about the need for artists to have the freedom to express their thoughts without fear

The power of drawings is such that sometimes some of the strongest messages are given through simple sketches. That's one of the reasons why Polish cartoonist Izabela Kowalska-Wieczorek fell in love with the world of illustrations. Now, Bengalureans are getting a chance to see her work up close, as they are being exhibited at the Indian Institute of Cartoonists. The exhibition features 80 of her works from the years 2014 to 2020.

Starting off as a children's book illustrations, Wieczorek has won many accolades for her works. However, she considers her illustration for the book Szelmostwa Lisa Witalisa by Jan Brzechwa, in 1983, as her breakthrough project, as it won various competitions and created many more opportunities. After working as a children's book illustrations for close to 30 years, Wieczorek decided to venture into satirical drawing around eight years ago. "Everything that has happened to me in the recent years, like the possibility to speak on important matters through my cartoons, positive opinions of colleagues and critics, awards, meetings and discussions with the masters of caricature in the real and virtual world confirmed that it was a good decision. Now, I am a retired illustrator and an active cartoonist," says Wieczorek, who was introduced to the world of art by her parents who were also visual artists.

Having tried various aspects of cartooning, Wieczorek does not find much difference in the way she approaches a children's project or a satirical cartoon. "Both require a lot of commitment, time and concentration. It took me about two weeks to make a precise illustration with acrylic glazes. In cartoons, the most important thing is the idea that takes longer to think about, but it is faster to execute. The difficulty level is similar, but cartooning gives me more satisfaction," she explains.

A time when artists are being criticised or jailed for throwing light on the happening of the society, Wieczorek says an artist has all the right to execute their right to freedom of speech. "Declarations of freedom of speech, included in nearly every Constitution, are often broken by governments that refuse to accept criticism. I believe that it is the moral duty of cartoonists all over the world to support repressed colleagues by addressing this issue in their works made available in the virtual world," she says, affirmatively, adding that technology also plays an important role in bringing the artists together to stand in support of each other. Although her life is full of paints, brushes, easels, papers and books, she still loves technology for one reason. "It allows us to react quickly to various important global problems and share cartoons even in times of total isolation during the pandemic," she signs off.

Illustrations by Izabela Kowalska-Wieczorek will be exhibited at Indian Institute of Cartoonists, Midford Garden Road, till Feb 24.

Based on a real-life incident, director Nagesh Hebbur's 20-minute film delves into victim character assassination, trolling and more

The viral GAME

EXPRESS FEATURES

A still from the film

With the opportunity of becoming an overnight sensation to being bogged down and threatened by trolls, the internet has far-reaching consequences. In his latest short film, Public Toilet, director Nagesh Hebbur plays out an incident which reflects the harsh reality of the digital space. The 20-minute movie was released on YouTube on Feb. 7, and has already reached 40,000 views.

Based on a two-year-old real-life incident of a video of a sex worker from Tumakuru district going viral, the film throws light on the trials of the victim. The narration is shot from the perspective of the person who secretly shot the clip. "The incident was unfortunate because the woman in the clip had to bear the brunt of the incident. Since her face was visible, she was trolled, but till date, the identity of the person who shot the clip is anonymous," says Hebbur, adding that the video went viral with a particular hashtag. "It got so popular that there are over 25,000 videos with that hashtag," he adds.

Hebbur, who has more than 10 years of experience in the Kannada film industry, has been trying to make this movie for the past one year, but finally got a chance to shoot it last year. "Initially, we had some financial constraints, because of which it got delayed. I planned it in such a way that I shot the movie during the lockdown, when actors, locations and the equipment were easily available," he says, adding that there are 5-6 important characters in the movie.

Though not a big screen release, Hebbur has worked on the movie with the same passion he would have if it were a full-length film. Considering the number of views as nothing short of an achievement for a short film, he says, "Though the movie shows how trolls works and affect people, the internet gives opportunities for growth. Otherwise it would have been hard for me to screen my movie," he says.

DECODING LOVE

When studying programming languages, even in 2021, a serious student of computer programming is likely to start with the core of the most popular programming language ever, which is C. For the last 30-40 years, C has been the at the core of many hardcore techies' life. Then, when they go on to learn any other language that have been largely built on C itself, including C++, C#, and a lot many that derive strongly from C itself, such as Java, PHP, etc., it is a much easier deal. And with C, one can do so much more at a deeper level. For a language born in 1973 or so, it really has stood the test of time in the tech world where things change so fast.

If you are wondering why we are talking about a computer programming language in a column about love and relationships, hang in there – you will see the point soon enough.

We are not really machines and the code that drives us is in one sense really far more complex than any computer, even with artificial intelligence and machine learning becoming so good that one may not realise for quite some time that one is chatting with a bot. People are also constantly changing. We are not the people we were even five or 10 years ago, and certainly as a society, we are way different now than we were a decade ago – just travel back to a town you haven't been to in a while and you would see that. When we meet people from before we were in any sort of relationship, we often quickly go back to who we were then. They know us in a way that is very different from how our partners might know us, and that can become quite the conflict -- sometimes with old friends telling us we are too changed for comfort, and at other times with a partner saying they hardly know us at all and maybe even accusing us of putting up a front.

The question is this: Are we, at the core of us, still the same even if we have grown through all the things that life and love bring? Or, are we so far into our new life, that we can't even recognise our old life? Love and relationships are life-changing, but do they change who we are at a basic level? In other words, is there still the good old C deep inside us, even if we are all fancy with Python, PHP and Ruby now? How much of our core identity stays with us even as we change? If we were C before, are we C++ now, or something else altogether?

In ordinary circumstances, one might wish to just see everything as adding on to the core of who we are, that life is making us richer, more connected. Every now and then though, we might still need to be something else altogether -- like learning Scala.

Sudeep

The action-adventure drama will be released in 3-D in French, Arabic, Spanish, Mandarin and Russian, besides several Indian languages

Vikrant Rona to travel to over 50 countries

CE FEATURES

SUDEEP has completed 25 years in the film industry, and the makers of Vikrant Rona made it even more special for him by unveiling the title logo and sneak peek of the film at Burj Khalifa. It was revealed again in the city on Sunday in the presence of a small gathering. "This teaser belongs to music director Ajaneesh Loknath, and people can expect something universal from him for Vikrant Rona," said Sudeep, who also revealed that the production house is planning to bring out the film in 3-D, and work is in process on that front. Vikrant Rona is set to be released in more than 50 countries. Along with multiple Indian languages, it will also be dubbed and released in French, Arabic, Spanish Mandarin and Russian.

Talking about the team work for Vikrant Rona, Sudeep said he would give 50 per cent credit to producer Jack Manju (Manjunath Gowda). "I know him as a good friend and businessman from 1983-84, and he is an honest person. I would also give 30 per cent credit to director Anup Bhandari, 10 per cent to all the technicians, 8 per cent to all my co-artistes, and 2 per cent is what I want to take for myself. Everybody has done a wonderful job," Sudeep said, adding that he will be happy to get more opportunities to work with Anup. "We rarely come across honest workers, and this is something I found in both the brothers - Anup, and his brother Nirup.

The film features Neetha Ashok as the female lead. The team is now left with one song to shoot, and they are currently busy with the post-production work.

'KANNADA CINEMA IS HOME'

... says Rashmika Mandanna, who is paired opposite Dhruva Sarja in Pogaru, directed by Nanda Kishore; film bankrolled by BK Gangadhar is slated to release on February 19

THE virus is still out there. Even though vaccination has become available for many, not everyone has taken it. I don't know what the future holds. I can't be selfish and ask the audience to forget everything and come and watch my films in theatres. So, all I can say is, take care of yourself, take precautions. Having said that, we must also note that people need entertainment now more than ever. So, for those who want to come and dance and whistle in theatres, Pogaru will be a perfect film."

One for the family

"The bilingual is a total mass film, with all the commercial elements. This is not a film about just its hero and heroine; it is a wholesome family entertainer. The style of the hero, the action sequences, the mother sentiment, the songs... all these aspects will be highlights. I don't know how much I can tell you about my role; so, I'll just tell you that my character name is Geetha and this is the third time I play a character with this name (laughs). She is a strict professor, an introvert who is the opposite of the hero. It is a good balance. The lead character and I share a Tom-and-Jerry vibe in this film. The 'Karaabu' song is just an extension of this. I often listen to this song at my gym, where others seem to enjoy working out to it."

Nuggets about the cast

"I was completely shocked to see Dhruva Sarja in his 'beast' look. I have seen him only as a sweet and well-groomed boy earlier. It shows immense dedication and hard work on his part, and I'm extremely proud of him. I also have to appreciate the producer's patience in carrying this film for over eighteen months. Nanda Kishore gave me a free hand to perform a role that is very much like who I really am. He comes across as an extremely knowledgeable filmmaker, someone who is also calm and composed. The next time he offers me a project, I know I will be saying yes immediately."

A still from Pogaru

Controversy's child

"Controversies have made me cry a lot. However, today, if there are no controversies being publicised about me, I almost miss them. I am in that phase where I want people to talk about me. I use my mother and other well-wishers as a protective shield to ensure that the negativity doesn't affect the person that I am."

Star salaries

"Rumours about my salary being 2 crore? I can only dream of the figures being written about, but no, it is not the case. Every time we talk about payment, someone invariably begins comparing it with other heroines. I have been toiling hard, day in and day out, but I have not reached what many think I am earning. But yes, I would love to reach that position."

Future prospects

"I've decided not to listen to any script until July/August. I dislike saying yes to a film and then waiting for six months before it kicks into motion. I wish to complete my current commitments before signing any more projects. I know there are rumours about me being a part of Vikas Bahl's next (also starring Amitabh Bachchan), but I would like to remain secretive about such offers. I will not comment on being part of projects when the production house and team have not officially announced it yet."

The language barrier

"Whenever I begin working on a film from a new language, I become a debutant once again. I make sure I focus on the learning; it is not about showing off what I already know. I know that my previous experiences will not be enough because with a new language, I am catering to a new audience, a new culture. I began with work in Kannada, and then, I went to Telugu. I am doing Tamil and Hindi films now, as well. Though it may all seem the same from the outside, only I know that the learning process is different each time. Take Bollywood, for instance. There is so much preparation, so many workshops; I had to stay in Mumbai for some time. I am excited to get on to the sets of Mission Majnu after all this background work. In general, I view Kannada cinema to be my home turn. Telugu cinema is my school, where I have learned so much. Tamil cinema, I see as a sign of my good fortune."

Biopic dreams

"I am a sucker for content-oriented scripts. My commercial successes will not deter me from doing a film like Kirik Party or Dear Comrade. I will always be a part of such films when the script feels right, and I see myself fitting into it. I want to do biopics too. Perhaps someone will offer me a biopic of actors like Soundarya ma'am or Sridevi ma'am. But yes, it all depends on the filmmakers. I know I will never say no to a biopic."

Manoj Bajpayee wants to play this historical figure

CE FEATURES

THE trailer for Secrets of Sinhauli: Discovery of the Century, a new documentary film on the archeological excavations at Sinhauli, is out. Set to premiere on Discovery+, the film is presented by Neeraj Pandey and narrated by Manoj Bajpayee.

Speaking at an online press conference for the film, Manoj revealed the one historical figure he wishes to portray on screen.

"I would like to play (Emperor) Ashok," Manoj said. "Ashok's life is quite dramatic with many ups-and-downs. There are lots of perceptions about his life. I would like to play him while I still can."

The actor also said he'd like more realism in the historical genre. "Our historicals are still drawn from Parsi theatre traditions," Manoj observed. "We have failed so far to make these characters life-like. They often seem like alien inhabitants from another planet."
